Christmas spirit at the race track

To the 175 youngsters from Maryville Academy, the person, running around with a white beard and the red suit, should have been Ernie Poulos.

Instead, Santa Claus was portrayed by Jeanette Gscheidle (see story below). Poulos was too busy Sunday rushing around at the Arlington Park Race Track, making sure the residents of the Des Plaines children's home had a good time at his Christmas party.

The modest Poulos said, "It does my heart good to see these kids here."

The real Santa — Ernie Poulos.

Smothered in feathers and affection.

"He looks real."

Trouble getting horses

Dates delay to hurt Arlington track?

If delays in granting racing dates extend past Jan. 17, Arlington Park Race Track may have "serious problems" in securing horses for the upcoming season, a race track official said Sunday.

"There could be an awful lot of trouble," said the official, who asked to remain anonymous. "Getting horses takes a long time."

The Illinois Racing Board will meet Jan. 17. Racing dates will be awarded if the Illinois General Assembly assures the board that action will be taken on $2.1 million funding to operate the board for the year.

THE BOARD released harness racing dates through January for Aurora Downs, Balmoral Park and downstate Cahokia Downs.

Dates are supposed to be set by Dec. 1 for the following year. But the board recessed its dates hearings Nov. 22 and permitted the deadline to pass.

Board members have said scheduling is impossible until operational funds are granted. The General Assembly adjourned Nov. 21 without taking action on the board's request and is slated to resume Jan. 14.

Arlington Park officials have requested a 150-day thoroughbred racing season from May 3 to Oct. 23. The official said, "This could delay us in our missionary work for getting horses."

He said the upcoming season is an important one for Illinois race tracks. "This will be a whole new era for racing in Illinois."

THE OFFICIAL said under a new state law which goes into effect Jan. 1, there will be more money available for race purses and capital improvements. He estimated there may be as much as $1.5 million extra to put toward purses.

The larger purses would draw the "good" horses, he said.

He added it was important to start selling the idea of bigger purses early.

Village seeks to regulate electronic game centers

The electronic games center controversy, which has raged in Rolling Meadows since July, may never get a chance to surface in Arlington Heights.

The Arlington Heights Village Board legal committee meets today at 8 p.m. to discuss controls on businesses with pinball and other coin-operated entertainment devices. Assistant Village Atty. Ernest R. Blomquist expects several meetings will be needed before an ordinance is drafted, limiting the number of coin-operated machines at businesses in the village.

"I want us to be ahead of amusement center problems," Hanson said. "I don't want Arlington Heights to get these exclusive businesses — like ar-cadees that have nothing but coin-operated machines."

HANSON SAID that there have not been any requests to open games centers in Arlington Heights but that "they're springing up all around us."

"I am not aware of an overt problem existing in Arlington Heights," Blomquist said. "But this is a legal question which has to be answered sooner or later."

It is no longer possible to legislate against loitering — one major complaint about the game centers — because of changes in curfew legislation, Blomquist said.

Pace of recession recovery slows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pace of recovery from the recession is slowing.

Economists expected it to slow — it could not long sustain its breakneck speed of the early autumn — but there are signs that something more serious than mere moderation has set in.

This is the picture which emerges from a mixed set of economic statistics from recent weeks. Unemployment fell from 8.6 to 8.3 per cent, a sharp drop, and down significantly from the recession's peak of 9.2 per cent in May. But total employment, a more significant indication of the nation's economic health, also declined.

On the inflation front, another mixed picture: the cost of living, reflecting consumer prices, rose when last measured, in October, at a sharp rate. But wholesale prices, in November, recorded a zero change — mainly because volatile food prices declined enough to offset increases in industrial prices.

The index of economic indicators, which is intended to foretell the economy's future path, declined in October, for the second straight month.

Here is a summary of the latest figures:

• UNEMPLOYMENT: Unemployment fell 0.3 per cent to 8.3 per cent in November — the sharpest decline in six months — because of recalls among laid off family men and a big decline in job seekers. But there was also a slight decline in total employment.

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Santas are a dime a dozen around the Northwest suburbs this time of year, but Jeanette Gscheidle is one of a kind.

The Palatine mother of four makes her national debut as the merry "gentleman" from the North this month on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show."

Mrs. Gscheidle called The Herald offices late Sunday to say she will appear on Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow Show" at midnight tonight.

But Santa is no newcomer to suburbanites who now are accustomed to seeing a woman in the Santa suit cruising down the highway. They simply wave and remark that it must be that time of year again.

Every year Mrs. Gscheidle dons a red suit and white beard to make the rounds at local public schools, schools for the handicapped and homes for the elderly. She never comes empty handed, thanks to donations from individuals and local stores.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE chuckles that she is particularly suited for the role since she weighs about 300 pounds.

"I'm built for it," she said with a laugh.

Her Totie Fields sense of humor probably contributes most to this Santa's genuine jolliness.

A friend thought Santa would be the perfect guest on Carson's late night talk show so she sent photos and newspaper clippings describing Santa's exploits in the Northwest suburbs. Much to Mrs. Gscheidle's surprise, she received a phone call from the network last month asking if she would be available for an appearance.

She'll make the all-expense paid trip to California soon and hopes the show will be aired sometime during Christmas week although the exact date has not been set. She plans to use the money she will be paid to cover the cost of a new $300 Santa suit, a copy of the one worn by Bing Crosby in the movie "White Christmas."

Mrs. Gscheidle is a bit nervous about being broadcast nationwide before millions of viewers. "I want to get there, get it over with and get back," she said.

SHE ADMITS, with an impish grin, that she has done "a few nutty things" while in disguise. Last year she walked into the Palatine Post Office and asked for her mail. After some bewildered stammerings, the postal clerk finally handed over a sack full of letters addressed to Santa Claus.

"Who's going to say no to a giant in a Santa Claus suit?" Mrs. Gscheidle said.

The post office now has agreed to keep her mail, and Mrs. Gscheidle tries to answer the children's letters.

Then there was the time when Santa and her son stopped at the local Jack-In-The-Box for a hamburger. She drove up to the outside speaker and ordered, "ho hoing into the microphone." The waitress appreciated the joke but was startled when Santa drove up in costume to claim the meal. Mrs. Gscheidle still remembers the looks on the faces of the cooks, waitresses and customers who ran to the window for a peek.

Starting Wednesday, Mrs. Gscheidle begins her annual whirlwind tour visiting 300 to 400 children each day. Each child receives a bag of goodies including candy and small toys.

When she visits homes for the elderly, she gives bags containing stationery, pens, calendars, combs and toiletries.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE has had many generous donations of gifts from individuals and local businesses. Bob's Union 76, her local service station, gave her $50 in gasoline "for the sled." When Santa was at the beauty shop this week a customer overheard her talking about her program and left a check and a note of good wishes for her at the front counter.

"If everybody helps it all adds up," said Mrs. Gscheidle. That's what Christmas is all about — the joy of giving unselfishly, she said.

Heere's Jeanette!

Negotiations with union to resume today

United flights grounded until at least Wednesday

Auto crashes through bedroom

If United Airlines' ground crews had gone on strike just a little earlier Friday, Norma Hebel of Arlington Heights might not be alive today.

Mrs. Hebel, a telephone reservations agent for the airline, was at work early Saturday when a car crashed through the wall of her rented house at 1500 N. Evergreen Ave. and into her bedroom.

"What a mess," Mrs. Hebel said. "I'm glad I wasn't in bed. If I wouldn't have gone to work, it would have been curtains."

"I was leaving work when it first became official that the day's flights would be canceled."

SHE SAID SHE could not get into the bedroom because the car had pushed the bed against the door. Mrs. Hebel said there were broken pieces of brick and glass and portions of the car in the room.

"I don't want to go in there. I'm afraid I will get hurt," she said adding she slept in another part of the house.

The accident occurred about 1:40 a.m. The car driven by James R. Burger, 19, of 648 N. Chicago Ave., Arlington Heights, was traveling at a high rate of speed northbound on Dunton Street, police said.

Police reported the vehicle ran a stop sign, went over a lawn and into the house. Burger was charged with driving while intoxicated, speed too fast for conditions and disobeying a stop sign. He is scheduled to appear Jan. 30 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Those big jumbo jets that normally fly the friendly skies of United will remain parked at the O'Hare terminal, at least until Wednesday, as negotiations continue between the airline and striking ground personnel.

Talks broke off Sunday afternoon and are to resume early today in an effort to resolve the labor dispute involving 16,700 members of the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers. The union includes mechanics, ramp personnel, flight dispatchers and food service workers.

Nearly all United passengers found space on other flights Sunday, but a prolonged strike on the eve of the Christmas rush could cause problems for thousands of persons with holiday travel plans.

No commercial or charter flights will be scheduled by United through midnight Tuesday. Decisions on future flights will be made on a day-to-day basis during the strike, a company spokesman said.

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN the carrier and union representatives continued Sunday in Washington. Company officials said it was a healthy sign that talks were continuing despite the walkout late Friday.

The mechanics' contract expired Oct. 31. Mediators were called in Nov. 21 when negotiations stalled over wages and fringe benefits.

Representatives of both sides said they are hopeful an agreement will be reached before the Christmas traffic becomes really heavy, probably in about two weeks. United is the second major airline to be knocked out of service by a strike this year. National Airlines has been shut down since Labor Day when flight attendants walked off the job.

Stationed outside the O'Hare terminal Robert Fischlein of Schaumburg, a striking United mechanic, said he was surprised the work stoppage became necessary. The last time airline mechanics grounded the nation's largest carrier was in 1966.

That walkout affected not only United, but five other airlines as well.

"I DIDN'T THINK it would come to this," Fischlein said. "But if we have to strike, you have to go along with it. I think they'll settle soon."

Passengers scheduled on United flights out of O'Hare Sunday were directed by reservations clerks to other airlines. Clerks advised travelers to make alternate flight arrangements themselves to save time. Telephone lines at the airport were jammed nearly all day as almost 14,000 United passengers scrambled for seats on other planes.

Most appeared to be satisfied with the bookings they were able to make. Although switching flights meant delays for some persons, others were able to leave earlier than scheduled. One man said he even saved some money because of the strike.

On his way home to Boulder, Colo.: after spending the weekend with friends in Evanston, Richard Shorten said in transferring from United to Continental, somebody forgot to charge him for tariffs on both flights.

"I was a little upset when I heard about the strike this morning, but it saved me $20, so who cares?" he said.

UNITED EMPLOYEES are attempting to contact persons holding reservations through Tuesday, but a company spokesman advised anyone who hasn't already been reached to go ahead and make reservations on another airline.

An American Airlines ticket agent said the passenger load caused by the strike has not overburdened other carriers, but if the strike continues, finding enough space to meet the Christmas demand will be a problem.

"Everybody's booked up for Christmas," he said. "I don't know what will happen if they don't settle pretty soon. I don't see how we could possibly handle the load."

United has 49,000 employees nationwide and normally carries about 90,000 passengers daily on 1,400 flights between 113 cities in the United States and Canada.

Racing date delays may hurt track

Arlington Park Race Track faces serious problems in securing horses for the upcoming racing season if delays in granting racing dates continue past Jan. 17, a track official said Sunday. "There could be an awful lot of trouble," the official said. "Getting horses takes a long time." The Illinois Racing Board will meet Jan. 17. Racing dates will be awarded if the Illinois General Assembly assures the board that action will be taken to fund board operations next year. Dates are supposed to be set by Dec. 1 for the following year, but the board recessed its hearings on racing dates Nov. 22 and permitted the deadline to pass. The legislature adjourned Nov. 21 without taking action on the board's request and is slated to resume Jan. 14. Arlington Park has requested 150 racing dates for next year.

Ford pays tribute to U.S. war dead at Pearl Harbor

HONOLULU, (UPI) — President Ford paid tribute to U.S. war dead Sunday and pledged that Americans "will never drop our guard nor unilaterally dismantle our defenses" in the search for durable peace in Asia and the world.

In a wreath-laying ceremony at the watery grave of the battleship Arizona at Pearl Harbor and in a speech at the University of Hawaii's East-West Center, the President declared the United States will remain a strong, active influence in the Pacific to promote peace and political stability.

Several hundred persons greeted Ford on his arrival at Hickam Field from the Philippines on a bright, warm tropical morning exactly 34 years after the surprise Japanese air attack that killed 2,380 Americans, devastated the U.S. Pacific fleet and swept the United States into World War II.

"We Americans must and will use our moral leadership and our material strength to bring the Pacific community — and the world — little by little, year by year, closer and closer to real and reliable peace," he said at the Arizona war memorial.

Ford, who was a Navy lieutenant in the Pacific during the war, vowed to "build a safer and saner world" and asked rhetorically: "Why do young men have to die? Could they not live for their country?"

On the last stop of his 27,000-mile tour of the Far East, including four days in China, before returning to Washington on Monday the President's reference to U.S. military vigilance acquired added significance with word that the Soviet Union had signaled a willingness to explore compromises to reach a new arms control agreement with Washington.

"We who remember Pearl Harbor will never drop our guard, nor unilaterally dismantle our defenses," Ford said at the Arizona memorial.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was expected to confer soon with Soviet Communist chairman Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow on possible ways to break the arms control deadlock.

Kissinger and George Bush, the U.S. liaison chief in Peking, flew to Tokyo Sunday to inform Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki and Foreign Minister Kiichi Miyazawa on the results of Ford's China visit.

Before he left Manila, Ford and Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos agreed to a joint, high-level study of Filipino claims to sovereignty over Clark Air Base and Subic Bay naval base, two strategically important U.S. military installations in the western Pacific.

Marcos said Ford's visit "contributed a great deal to the settlement of the fears of Asian nations about being abandoned" by the United States after the fall of Indochina, and confusion over how far to build their own economic and military defenses against threats of aggression.

"We believe in an effective presence of the United States in the western Pacific . . . to maintain peace," Marco told Ford.

PRESIDENT FORD, in Pearl Harbor Sunday, lays a wreath in front of replica of the U.S.S. Arizona on the 34th anniversary of the Japanese attack. Ford is returning from his China visit.

Beirut paralyzed by 'hysteria of hatred'

The slaughter of 100 kidnap victims in a "hysteria of hatred" between Moslem and Christian gunmen paralyzed Beirut Sunday and Interior Minister Camille Chamoun said martial law rule might be inevitable. The state radio warned citizens to stay indoors because all streets were unsafe.

Indonesian troops capture city

Indonesian troops landing from warships spearheaded an assault on the capital city of Dili in Portuguese Timor Sunday and captured it from leftist forces who had declared independence from Portugal last week. It was not known how many persons were killed and wounded in the fighting. The landings took place one day after a visit to Jakarta by President Ford on his way home to Washington from China. It was not known whether Ford was informed in advance.

Train gunmen consider surrendering

South Moluccan gunmen, holding some 30 hostages aboard a train since Tuesday, are considering surrendering and ending Holland's longest-running siege, the chief mediator said Sunday. Another group of Moluccans holding 19 adults and four children at gunpoint in Amsterdam's Indonesian consulate gave no signs that they were ready to give up. The train gunmen agreed to consider a surrender because the Dutch government has rejected their political demands.

N. Viets 'duped' U.S.: MIA delegation

A U.S. congressional delegation was "charmed and duped" by North Vietnam into believing there are no American servicemen still held captive, a group seeking the return of missing soldiers charged Sunday. The North Vietnamese Saturday turned over the ashes of three servicemen who died in the North and told a congressional delegation in Paris there are no Americans left in Vietnamese prisons. Earl P. Hopper, executive director of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, said the MIA group could "not accept the word of the Communists that they are not holding any more Americans, alive or dead."

Knight newspaper heir murdered

John S. Knight III, 30, an heir to the Knight newspaper fortune, was beaten and stabbed to death in his downtown Philadelphia apartment Sunday in what police said was an apparent robbery attempt. Detectives said three men were believed to have broken into Knight's apartment on Rittenhouse Square. It was not immediately learned if anything had been taken from his home.

U.N. to view Israel condemnation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The Security Council reconvenes Monday to discuss whether to condemn Israel for its air attacks on Palestinian camps in Lebanon last week, a move that may be cut short by a U.S. veto.

The council agreed last Thursday to allow the Palestine Liberation Organization to take part in the debate, a decision that prompted an Israeli boycott of the meeting.

A draft resolution introduced by the council's nonaligned members Friday would have the council condemn Israel's "premeditated air attacks against Lebanon" and ask it to "desist forthwith from all military attacks" against the neighboring nation.

It also would warn Israel that if such attacks were repeated the council would consider taking unspecified "appropriate steps and measures" against the Jewish state.

U.S. ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan told the council Friday that the United States would support a resolution condemning "all acts of violence in the Middle East," not just those by Israelis.

Diplomats said Moynihan's statement represented a strong hint that the United States would use its veto against the resolution.

Moynihan, who Thursday called the PLO an "amorphous terrorist organization," said the United States deplores the loss of all innocent human life "whether it occurs from the acts of organized groups or of governments."

In a television interview Sunday Moynihan said the Israeli raids on Palestine enclaves in Lebanon has not helped the peace effort in the Middle East.

"Certainly, violence on either side has never helped that peace setting," he said in a television interview (ABC's "Issues and Answers").

"The situation is not better in the aftermath of the raids. It was not better in the aftermath of the terrorist attacks inside Israel, which led to the raids," he said.

Moynihan also said that Israel told the United States that "in no sense did those raids respond to actions here in the United Nations."

"They responded to terrorist actions inside Israel," Moynihan said. "It was a response in kind."

"I cannot imagine that the Israeli government, a democratic society, a humane society, would strike out in that manner because of resolutions taken here or speeches made here," he answered a question on whether the Israeli raids were a response to the Zionism racism resolution or the presence of members of the Palestinian Liberation Organization in the Security Council Middle East debate.

The U.S. Ambassador to the U.N.

also referred to charges of Soviet infiltration in Africa and said: "What the United States ought not do, and we are not doing is remain silent about it."

"There is a curious number of people over in that U.N. building who will yell and scream about the fact that the United States has two Coast Guard stations in the Virgin Islands, but it's curiously silent about expeditionary force in Angola," he said. Moynihan said the United Nations is "worth saving."

"The U.N. is going to be there," he said. "The question is what role do we play in it, and it's our view that we have to play a constructive one, and when we're under attack, we have to respond in a sensible way to attacks upon us," he said.

Also appearing on the show was singer Pearl Bailey, who recently was named a special adviser to the U.S. delegation at the U.N.

climbed 0.7 per cent in October, the third largest monthly increase this year, and 0.2 per cent higher than September. The increase translates into an annual rate of 8.4 per cent. The Consumer Price Index stood at 164.6 in October, 7.6 per cent higher than a year ago. Goods and services that cost $100 in 1967, now cost $164.60.

• WHOLESALE PRICES: A sharp drop in food prices held the Wholesale Price Index unchanged in November for the best hedge against inflation since last spring. The zero change in the wholesale inflation rate was the most favorable since a 0.1 per cent decline in June.

• REAL EARNINGS: The average worker's "real" income — wages plus fringe benefits after allowing for inflation — was unchanged despite higher consumer prices, because of an increase in hourly earnings and number of hours worked.

• PROFITS: Corporate profits increased 16.8 per cent in the third quarter, the largest gain since a 22.9 per cent increase in the second quarter of 1946. Profits increased $17.6 billion to $122.5 billion, mostly because of improvement in the auto industry and other durable goods.

INDICATORS: The index of leading business indicators fell 0.5 per cent in October, the second consecutive decline of the chart which often is a harbinger of future economic trends. It fell a revised 0.1 per cent in September. But economists said the drop more likely forewarns a slowdown in the growth of the economy in the fourth quarter after the rapid recovery of the third quarter, and does not necessarily reflect a worsening economic picture.

GNP: The "real" Gross National Product — with inflation removed from the figures — grew in the third quarter at the fastest rate in more than 25 years, causing one of the largest revisions ever made in preliminary estimates of the real Gross National Product. The real GNP was initially estimated last month as 11.2 per cent over the second quarter, but the revision put the growth at 13.2 per cent — the highest since the third quarter of 1950 when the real GNP increased 17.5 per cent.

OUTPUT: Industrial production — output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities — increased 0.4 per cent in October, the sixth straight monthly increase. But the gain was down from the 1.8 per cent increase in September.

HOUSING STARTS: Housing starts in October jumped 15 per cent over the previous month, a strong indication the housing industry may finally be recovering from its worst slump in a generation.

Congress set to save N.Y.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress, moving into the last two weeks of the session, is ready to rescue New York City from bankruptcy and ram through other legislation which could provoke a bag full of Christmas-time vetoes by President Ford.

Congressional approval of $2.3 billion over 30 months in direct federal loans to salvage New York, tailored to Ford's demands, is a certainty.

Other legislation moving toward the White House appears headed for trouble.

A comprehensive tax revision package, which continues the $12 billion personal income tax reduction due to expire Jan. 1, has cleared the House. Ford said he would veto it unless the bill carries a spending ceiling. A compromise might be worked out by the Senate.

London police nix demands by IRA

LONDON (UPI) — Police vowed Sunday not to yield to the demands of four trapped Irish Republican Army gunmen for a plane and safe passage to Ireland in exchange for two hostages. The IRA men are believed responsible for the deaths of more than two dozen persons in the London area.

"The only chance is that they come out with their hands up," said police commander William Fleming. "The negotiations will be conducted on our terms."

The "no deals" pledge set the stage for a possibly lengthy siege in the effort to capture all or part of the IRA gang that has killed 27 persons and wounded 540 in London-area bombings and shootings during the past 18 months.

Policemen occupied every floor of the besieged four-story downtown apartment block except the second where the IRA gunmen were holding a middle-aged couple.

Negotiations were going on via a special telephone lowered to the gunmen from the roof.

The four men were chased into the Dorset square apartment of Mr. and Mrs. John Mathews amid a hail of gunfire Saturday night. They told Scotland Yard by telephone that they were IRA and wanted a plane to fly them to Ireland.

"They are not going anywhere and are not getting any plane to Ireland," deputy assistant police commissioner Ernest Bond said.

"I'm reasonably satisfied that these men are the cell we have been looking for, responsible for the outrages over the last 18 months."

Mathews, 54, and his wife, Sheila, 53, were reported safe, but Bond described her as "a little nervous." Hundreds of policemen cordoned off the Dorset square neighborhood, near Regents Park and Baker Street, and brought in marksmen, dog handlers and sophisticated listening equipment to eavesdrop on the apartment.

Searchlights were trained on the second floor windows through the night, a tactic to keep the gunmen awake and begin the psychological breakdown process. The gunmen left the Mathews' telephone off the hook during the night but, when the police called in the morning, said "we'll see about" releasing the hostages while repeating the demand for a plane.

The siege was the result of a police operation that blanketed London's posh West End with uniformed and plainclothes patrols in an attempt to trap the IRA bombers where they have been striking most.

When two shots were fired from a stolen car at Scott's restaurant, where one person was killed and 17 were wounded in a bombing Oct. 29, the police gave chase.

One police car rammed the fleeing vehicle, forcing its occupants to flee on foot into the Mathews apartment in a flurry of bullets.

No one was hurt. One passerby, arrested as an IRA suspect when he ran away, was later released.

Stevens was named by President Ford to replace Justice William O. Douglas who retired Nov. 12. Associates have described Stevens as "practical," "not always bound by conventional wisdom," "analytical," "moderate" and "hard to categorize."

Masked man at Carson's minus Tonto

LONE RANGER rode into Randhurst Friday to the delight of adult fans and most children. One little girl cried when her mom tried to photograph her with the masked stranger.

At Randhurst store

Lone Ranger draws 'em in

The Lone Ranger rides again — this time to Carson Pirie Scott & Co. stores in the Chicago area where he's promoting children's toys.

Despite the blue-gray suit, western-style hat and silver bullets, the Lone Ranger visiting the Randhurst Carson's store Friday wasn't Clayton Moore, the original Lone Ranger.

But that didn't seem to matter to the children and adults who waited in line for an autographed color picture.

THE CROWD that gathered around the legendary Western hero included several generations of Lone Ranger watchers.

"I heard him on the radio. That's how far back I go," one mother said.

Many youngsters had come to Randhurst just to see their TV hero.

Eight-year-old Lee Lerman, Mount Prospect, said the legendary good guy is one of his favorites, but said Sunday school keeps him from regularly watching the program that airs Sunday mornings on Channel 9. A real life visit was too good to pass up, he said.

There were as many adults as children waiting in line for autographs, although most said they were getting them for grandchildren, nieces and nephews. Some came with long lists, planning to buy frames and give the pictures as Christmas presents.

Some like Jerry Yenich, 19, Chicago, admitted he wanted the autographed picture for himself. Bob Marcanti, 24, Mount Prospect, said he was just getting the picture for his wife.

'Northwest 7' do well in poll by conservatives

Seven local members of the Illinois General Assembly received 100 ratings from the Illinois Conservative Union, according to a recent poll.

The legislators, three senators and three representatives, are among only 20 members of the two houses to receive the 100 rating for 1975.

The senators from the area to get the high marks are Bradley Glass, R-Northfield; John Graham R-Barrington; John Nimrod, R-Sokie and David Regner, R-Mount Prospect. The 100 ratings in the House went to Leo LaFleur, R-Bloomington; Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights; and Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates.

A spokesman for the ICU noted that in 1974 there were no 100 ratings in the Senate. He suggested the new results indicate a conservative shift in the Senate.

"IN VIEW OF the fact that all of the bills selected (for the poll) involve economic impact — that is, have a direct or indirect effect on the taxes and prices paid by the citizens of Illinois — a definite move toward 'fiscal prudence' is demonstrated," ICU Chairman James Evans said.

He said ratings in the House dropped from an average 51.3 in 1974 to 38.7 this year.

The other area senator, Howard Mohr, R-Forest Park, received an 86 rating.

D-Skokie, 20; Harold Katz, D-Glenview, 25; Ted Leverenz, D-Maywood, 22; Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, 88; Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, 20; John Porter, R-Evanston, 67; Jack Williams, D-Franklin Park, 50.

The ratings are based on votes on a series of 10 bills in the House and the Senate during 1975. The bills include amendments to the workmen's compensation act, appropriations for the Illinois Arts Council, Illinois Office of Education and amendments to the environmental protection agency.

Tiny Texas town would rather switch than pay

BRIDGEPORT, Tex. (UPI) — The 3,600 townspeople of this rural North Texas community think things may be a little sunnier now that the electric company is leaving town.

They even consider the action by Texas Power and Light Co. a favor.

"TP&L made us think about whether we were going in the right direction," City Mgr. Maury Brown said. "We had to ask, 'Is there an alternative to having to pay TP&L's increasing prices? Well, we think there is.'"

Last month the electric company threatened to turn off the city's power by late 1978 unless a sizeable rate increase was instituted immediately. The city refused.

"TP&L SLAPPED our hands as a way of telling all the other cities they serve (247), 'You guys don't get out of line,'" said Councilman Jack Vandevimer, who led the fight against the rate increase.

There was some momentary panic and a lot of anger. But that changed swiftly.

Solar King Inc. of Reno, Nev., told the city it was willing to construct a solar-powered electric generator to meet Bridgeport's needs. All the city had to do was provide the land for the plant.

If the proposal becomes a reality, then Bridgeport's electric costs could stay the same for up to 15 years, while light bills in other North Texas cities likely will skyrocket.

Brown said he was skeptical of the program at first, but then he called the federal Energy Research and Development Administration.

"I WANTED to know, 'are we out of our minds to consider this? Is the technology ready?' They said, 'Yes, it's ready. Definitely.'"

Brown said the agency even offered help, both financially and technically.

The sun-run plant uses flat plate solar collectors to heat water. The hot water in turn heats liquid silicon that runs a hydraulic engine and an electric generator.

It is expected to cost about $4 million and will need approximately 600 square feet of solar collectors to run three 2,000 horsepower engines. Three 1-million gallon water tanks are also needed.

According to Solar King Pres. Brian Pardo, a 97-hour reserve could tide Bridgeport through the dim, cloudy days of January.

There are other means to furnish power to Bridgeport. The city is located atop the Fort Worth Basin, a geological area which is the site of a miniboom in natural gas.

"We've had gas people tell us they would sell us all the gas we want," Brown said. "But it's no use tying onto something that's diminishing."

BRIDGEPORT ALSO is located on coal beds.

"But it costs a hell of a lot to get the coal out and carry it over and burn it," Brown said.

"And then you pollute the air."

"If we can move into replacement of our needs from a solar power, we would have done a service — not only for our citizens but for everybody else, too," he said. "Somebody has got to do the pilot project."

Refugee faces 3rd loss, baby dies

by STIRLING MORITA
Mrs. Chanh Nguyen, a Vietnamese refugee living in Mount Prospect, has experienced many sorrows in her life. Her husband died earlier this year while serving in the South Vietnamese navy. She learned about two weeks ago her brother, from whom she had been separated, had died in Vietnam. Then, Saturday night, her 3-month-old baby Frederick died, apparently the victim of crib death.

"She has had so many blows," said Mrs. Frederick Thulin, at whose house Mrs. Nguyen is staying. "She named him after my husband. We were the godparents of the baby."

POLICE SAID the baby was placed in his crib about 6 p.m. Mrs. Thulin and Mrs. Nguyen were washing the dinner dishes. The baby had been crying, and when he stopped they thought he had fallen asleep, police were told.

Mrs. Thulin entered the room, saw that the baby looked ill and attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. "He was a big healthy baby," Mrs. Thulin said.

The paramedics attempted to revive him. "The rescue squad was excellent," she said.

The baby was pronounced dead at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Thulin said the family should learn the cause of death soon.

Mrs. Nguyen gave birth to Frederick about four days after she was placed with the Thulins Sept. 12, Mrs. Thulin said.

MRS. NGUYEN and her two other children live with the Thulins. "We're very fond of them. They're like a part of the family," Mrs. Thulin said.

The Vietnamese mother and her three children were placed with the Thulins by Catholic Charities, which has sponsored many refugee families.

Mrs. Nguyen was living near Da Nang when her husband was killed. The family left South Vietnam because they were Catholic and feared repercussions when the North Vietnamese took over their country, Mrs. Thulin said.

At Arlington Heights Road

Underpass may stall parking lot

Plans for an Arlington Heights Road underpass at the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks may delay the development of additional commuter parking at the Hill-Behan Lumber Co. property, Assistant Village Mgr. Frank Charlton said Friday.

Construction of the $4.1 million underpass could force the temporary relocation of the railroad tracks onto the lumber company property which the village plans to buy for parking purposes.

Arlington Heights received approval of a $750,900 grant application to buy the Hill-Behan land at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights Road and the railroad tracks.

Since receiving approval for the grant in July, Charlton has been completing government forms in anticipation of actually acquiring the land for 180 additional commuter parking spaces.

The start of construction on the Arlington Heights Road underpass is at least two years away. But plans for the project indicate a possible conflict with the development of the parking lot.

Charlton said a meeting will be scheduled with the Illinois Dept. of Transportation and M&E Alstot March & Guillou, Des Plaines engineering firm designing the underpass, to evaluate construction problems in the two projects.

"We're not sure but it looks like the whole (parking) project may be held up," he said.

problems that occur at such centers, Blomquist said.

THE QUESTION in Rolling Meadows is more immediate, where there is a proposal from Mr. and Mrs. William Abrahams to open a coin-operated amusement center in the Coachlight shopping area near Kirchhoff Road and Owl Drive. The center would feature electronic pinball and air hockey games.

Since the proposal was submitted in July many church leaders and residents have opposed it. But the city council voted unanimously in October to approve an ordinance to allow the zoning and licensing for the center. Mayor Roland J. Meyer used his veto power for the first time in eight years to reverse that decision and the council failed to get the seven votes needed to override the veto.

Last month a new ordinance was proposed. It allowed mechanical amusement devices providing no eating or drinking occurred in the games facility. The council approved it with a 9-4 vote, but again Meyer vetoed it.

Dist. 25 rolls drop topic of 2 meetings

Two public meetings are scheduled this week to discuss a study of declining enrollment in Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

School officials will meet with residents at 7:30 p.m. today at Miner Junior High School and Wednesday at Thomas Junior High School.

The meetings have been scheduled by the board of education to seek the views of the community to a consultant's study recommending the closing of schools, increases in class size and increases in taxes to meet the financial deficit caused by dropping school enrollments.

Coin collection stolen from home

A coin collection valued at $1,000 was reported stolen Saturday after a break-in at the William Rank home, 1503 N. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights.

Taken was a collection of pennies, silver dollars, half dollars, silver certificates, $2 bills and foreign coins, police were told. Also taken was a ring. Police said no signs of forced entry were found.

Former track employee charged in murder

A former Arlington Park Race Track employee was being held in Cook County Jail Sunday in lieu of $200,000 bond on charges he beat to death a stablehand in August 1974, Arlington Heights police said.

Stanley Wayne Hood, who also has used the last name Woods, 34, waived extradition from Florida and was brought to Arlington Heights to face charges of murder and auto theft.

Hood was arrested in Ocala, Fla., about two weeks ago in connection with the murder of John H. Walker, 51, Covina, Calif.

Walker apparently died of a beating, authorities said. Hood and a companion, John Cochran, 36, also a race track employee, had told police in August they found Walker lying unconscious in the parking lot of the race track. They told authorities they thought he was intoxicated, and Hood reportedly drove Walker to Hawthorne Park, Cicero.

Walker was taken to MacNeal Memorial Hospital in Berwyn where he died about two weeks later. Cochran has been charged with auto theft and unlawful interstate flight.

Hood is scheduled to appear Dec. 12 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Ask Andy

Kangaroo rat a little speedster

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Peter Vleigen, 11, of St. Catharines, Ont., Canada, for his question:

WHAT IS A JERBOA?

In the Southwestern deserts of North America lives a little leaper called the kangaroo rat. The jerboa also is a ratty rodent, suited for life in arid desert regions. He also leaps along like a mini kangaroo. However, he belongs to the deserts of Africa and Asia. The two look-alikes are closely related as rodents, though they are classified in separate animal families.

The jerboa is a mousy-type animal with a tail as long as his body. His front legs are very small, but his hind legs are long and strong. Depending on his species, he measures 3 to 10 inches, plus that extra-long ratty tail — which ends in a tuft of hair. His ears are large, and his big bright eyes suggest that he does his foraging during the night. Even though he rarely comes out during the day, his sandy coat matches his sandy surroundings.

His skinny hind legs are more than half as long as his body and he uses them to leap along like the kangaroo-type animals of Australia. His long tail helps to keep him balanced — and when in a hurry he can bound over the sand in 10-foot leaps. His top speed is 35 miles per hour. But when scouting for food he hops around at more leisurely paces, taking jumps of four or five inches.

The jerboa is a born burrower, and he escapes the worst of the desert heat by living underground. He digs quite fast, using his hands with some help from his little round nose. Usually he stuffs his door with loose dirt to keep out heat and predators. He lives in a solitary burrow, though the female jerboa shares her burrow with the babies.

His menu is mainly vegetable food. During the rainy season he feasts on grasses and desert shrubs with perhaps an occasional grasshopper. When the dry season comes around, he survives on seeds and roots. Observers report that he is one of those rare animals that can get along with little or no water. Some suspect that his body has a secret way to create water from the oxygen in dry seeds.

Various jerboas are at home in the desert regions of North Africa. Others live in the high, dry deserts of China and some of their small cousins are at home in Siberia.

The jerboa refuses to breed in captivity so not too much is known about his family life. However, the female may bear one or two litters during the year. She nurses the blind, helpless infants for eight weeks, and they develop more slowly than most of their ratty relatives. However, a jerboa can expect to live for six years, which is twice as long as the average rat.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Natalie Gravelle, 10, of Ottawa, Ont., Canada, for her question:

WHAT WERE THE FIRST PAINTS MADE OF?

Even back in cave-man days, some of the people were born artists. This, of course, was ages before our wonderful modern paints were invented. But the born artists made paints from whatever materials happened to be around. If they had a campfire, maybe they used a charred stick to make pictures on the side of a boulder.

There were prehistoric painters at least 30,000 years ago. They made splendid animal pictures on the walls of their caves — and this artwork is there to this day. To make their paints they searched for colored rocks and clay, ground them to powder and made pasty mixtures. These early paints were used to add browns, yellows and other earthy colors to those wonderful old cave pictures. Sometimes sooty charcoal was mixed with fat and the pasty black paint was used to draw outlines. In the modern world, some people still use soot and earthy minerals to color their pottery.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Three requirements for forcing two bid

Jim: "We have been getting so many questions about the standard American forcing two bid that we might well discuss that bid."

Oswald: "The great advantage of that bid is that it is so nice when you get one."

Jim: "There are three general requirements. The first is a hand that will make or almost make game by itself. The second is slam possibilities and the third is enough high-card strength so that you fear a one bid may be passed out."

Oswald: "South has 20 highcard points and nine winners. He decides to open two spades. North raises to three and South sees no harm in cue bid-

The way we see it

Let's review JFK shooting

The further the assassination of President Kennedy fades into history, the more intense the controversy concerning it grows.

Ever since the Warren Commission declared in 1964 that accused assassin Lee Harvey Oswald "acted alone," public doubts about the commission's conclusions and methods have flourished.

This skepticism has been fueled in recent years by a host of critics — some who are thoughtful scholars, some who are obvious cranks—who charge that the commission's conclusions simply don't square with the evidence.

Recently, however, there have been more and more reports challenging not the evidence, but the commission's methods. There even has been talk of a cover-up. Consider these recent developments:

• News reports have circulated that the FBI withheld or destroyed evidence, including a threatening letter sent by Oswald to the FBI before the shooting.

• The Senate staff report of three weeks ago revealed that the CIA was working actively for the murder of Fidel Castro, including the arming of an assassin on the day of Kennedy's death.

Coupled with these and other disclosures is the fact that David Belin, a former commission lawyer and until now an outspoken defender of its work, has called for a reopening of the inquiry.

Part of Belin's argument — that the credibility of the commission's findings is questioned by a growing number of Americans — should be the foundation for a renewed investigation, we believe. Even if the commission's findings are marred by a widespread public cynicism about government, the public's disbelief still should be the foundation of a new look at the commission's work.

Belin believes fiercely that the Warren Commission's conclusions were in line with the evidence. If so, they should be able to stand the test of a new inquiry.

Some persons argue that the trail of evidence is so cold that a renewed inquiry would be pointless. But that's a matter which should be determined by a new full-scale investigation. It seems to us that, at the very least, the latest allegations of a cover-up are, in themselves, grounds for many new areas of inquiry. Such an inquiry should be started as soon as possible.

The violent death of John Kennedy created a national trauma, and the official explanation of his death has not removed the final traces of that trauma. A new inquiry is the only way to settle the matter.

We should have right to check drug prices

The consumer's right to compare prescription drug prices can and should be assured under a regulation proposed by the Federal Trade Commission.

We support the FTC's campaign to condemn price-squeezing by retail pharmacists and inadequate price disclosure. For too many years consumers have been told price competition will lead to reduced prices but at the expense of good service. We believe consumers should decide for themselves whether professionalism is determined by price.

In Illinois, the state board of pharmacy's restriction on prescription drug price disclosure was not lifted until August of this year. Before then, only a few pharmacies openly offered easy consumer access to prescription drug price information.

The FTC will decide whether to adopt the new trade rule in 1976 following hearings in Chicago and other U.S. cities. We believe the rule can provide a dose of competition to the drug industry that's long overdue.

The lighter side

No joy for 'vanishing' autos

by DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Something called the "Federal Interagency Task Force on Motor Vehicle Goals Beyond 1980" has released a big batch of study reports on the future of the automobile.

The outlook is not likely to make a motorist's heart sing. More blood on the highway. More pollution in the air. Rising gasoline prices. "A depression of new car sales." This is the sort of thing we have to look forward to.

Will the auto industry, forewarned by these bleak predictions, make the adjustments necessary to render the forecast inoperative? The task force study panels apparently don't think so.

They said little change in auto body or engine design is expected during the next quarter century.

There was something about these findings that gave me a tinge of déjà vu. Unable to put my finger on what it was that seemed hauntingly familiar, I stopped by the Library of Congress and skimmed through the index of previous government studies.

It was there I came across a report by the "Federal Interagency Task Force on Dinosaur Goals Beyond the Mesozoic Era."

Since portions of the material were missing, I did not learn in which country the report originated. Wherever it was, the dinosaur outlook definitely was bearish.

Of particular concern to the task force was the rising mountains in many parts of the earth. It said these upheavals were draining the swamplands where the dinosaurs roamed, bringing about rapid changes in climate and food supplies.

Unless the dinosaurs adapted to the new conditions, they would die out by the end of the Cretaceous Period, the task force predicted.

It recommended several alternatives in the dinosaur design, among them a larger brain and a smaller, more weather-resistant body.

It pointed out that small, or compact, dinosaurs would eat less and thereby survive longer on the dwindling food supply.

The report indicated, however, that there was substantial opposition to these proposals. It was argued that if dinosaurs grew fur or feathers to protect them from the cold, they would lose the body armor that protected them from injury in head-on collisions.

Furthermore, reducing the body size would diminish their ability to survive such accidents.

Opponents of the plan requested that the deadline for meeting the revised dinosaur standards be postponed for 10 million to 20 million years to permit a more gradual evolution.

Unfortunately, no subsequent documents were available, so I didn't learn how the controversy turned out.

'Keep teachers off Harper board'

Fence post. letters to the editor

The Harper College Board of Trustees is presently considering the addition of a faculty representative to the board. The purpose is presumably to provide better communications between the faculty and the board.

As a student, I am opposed to this proposal, and I feel that the voters in the Harper district need to know more about the reasons why a faculty seat is not desirable.

First of all, the faculty is not excluded from communications with the board at this time. The president of the Faculty Senate is seated at the regular meetings, and he is called upon regularly when his advice is offered or necessary.

Secondly, the creation of a position on the board for the faculty would set a precedent for other colleges. When the students in this state wanted representation on the Board, they had to go through the legislative process. The student representative is required by law now. I am not trying to be vindictive when I say that the faculty should use the same process. Since the creation of a faculty seat will probably affect schools throughout this state, it seems that such a decision should be handled by our legislature.

It is important to understand the fundamental difference between the presence of a student representative and the presence of a faculty representative. The board represents the people of this district, who are the ultimate employers at Harper. Students are also a type of employer, since the school exists for their education, and they pay part of the bill through tuition and taxes. The faculty, however, are employees. If the faculty is seated, there would seem to be no reason, in principle, to deny a seat to the maintenance staff or other employee groups. Clearly it is important for the faculty to have a chance to express their views to the board, but it does not follow that they need a formal seat on the board.

In fact, last year the board created a communications committee to provide more direct input to the board from all groups at Harper, including the faculty. The faculty refused to participate at first, and the committee was dissolved after only two meetings. The failure of the committee could have been avoided, and I think that the committee should possibly be reconsidered as an alternative to a faculty seat on the board.

Finally, I should point out that the faculty representative, as is the case with the student representative, would not have voting rights. This would not prevent the faculty from potentially making regular meetings difficult to control. The present faculty representative speaks at the discretion of the chairperson, Shirley Munson, and she had handled the situation with great skill. There is no lack of faculty input, nor is there any excess of faculty arguments. I cannot see the need for a change in faculty representation, especially when it might undermine the interests of the general community and students. After all, a faculty representative who exists at the invitation of the board is liable to be more influential than a student representative who must exist by law.

I would urge all concerned residents to voice their opposition to the creation of a faculty seat on the Harper College Board of Trustees by writing to the chairperson, Shirley Munson, at Harper before the next public meeting of the board in December. A lack of community input may result in an undesirable change in the structure of the board.

Sincerely,
Bruce Edward Donnelly

Cookie story hit

A recent article in The Herald about two reporters who did a feature on making bread dough ornaments was ridiculous! I am a student at Elk Grove High School and made the same craft, which turned out beautifully and believe me, I'm no expert at making crafts.

You made a great craft for not only the young, but the old, sound terrible. You made it sound as if it tears your whole house apart, when all it takes up is the space of a small counter.

You then go on to ask some really stupid questions. For example: How do you knead? Well let me just say that if two girls don't know how to knead, what business do they have creating a craft that requires it? You're right, these are not questions of true experts, but of rotten cooks!

IT SOUNDS TO ME like you rushed through the whole recipe. Even an amateur knows you don't rush through a first-time craft.

I hope this letter helps some of the discouraged readers to try this craft, for it is easy, and is very self-satisfying afterwards.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 — Royal Gov. William Tryon claimed he had been successful in bribing three of the four remaining gunsmiths in the colonies to go to England for the duration of the conflict. He said he had promised them a travel allowance and assured them of jobs at the Tower of London.

A WOMAN, a shop in Wheaton designed specially to meet the needs of the post-mastectomy customer, is the only boutique of its kind in Illinois. This nightgown with ruffled top gives no clue. The gown and matching robe come in prints and solid colors.

Breast surgery patient worries:

How will I look?

THIS LEATHER-look dress is part of the sportswear collection at A Woman. The boutique is owned by Pat Exner, former mastectomy patient who knows fitting problems first-hand.

by KAREN THOMPSON

A mastectomy changes a woman's life within the space of just a few hours.

"During the first frightening days and nights the future seems hopeless," said Terese Lasser, founder of the Reach to Recovery (RTR) rehabilitation program for women who have had breast surgery.

Mrs. Lasser was forced, by lack of information, to try to cope by trial and error with all the social, cosmetic and psychological effects of her own operation.

"I had to discover where to shop for an artificial breast form. I didn't even know that it was called a prosthesis, let alone how to pronounce it," she said in the foreword to the pamphlet that is now handed out to mastectomy patients in hospitals throughout the country by RTR volunteers.

TERESE HAD A mastectomy in 1952. During her recuperation, it became clear to her that not enough was being done for women going through the trauma of breast surgery.

As a mastectomy patient who had adjusted well to her own operation, she decided that she and other women who had breast surgery could provide psychological assistance to other women on a woman-to-woman basis. That was the beginning of the Reach to Recovery program of the American Cancer Society. Today it includes more than 2,300,000 volunteers.

"One of the greatest concerns for mastectomy patients is, 'What will I do when I get home?'" said Carol Waltman, Palatine, a Reach to Recovery volunteer who had a mastectomy.

Patients must wait until their doctor gives approval before they can wear a weighted or permanent form, usually about a month or two, said Mrs. Waltman.

Until that time, however, Reach to Recovery supplies a temporary breast form which is weightless and often used with the same bra the patient wore before surgery. This temporary form allows the tissue time to toughen and heal.

CONCERN ABOUT appearance is a primary one for the mastectomy patient. An effective breast substitute is a physiological and psychological necessity.

The prosthesis in size, shape, weight and texture resembles the true breast and simulates actual movement during normal and rigorous activities.

"A woman should not be fitted for a permanent breast form by just any clerk," said Carol Waltman. "Whoever is selling should be specially trained in fitting a prosthesis. Most of the large department stores employ specialists, trained by the major manufacturers of prostheses," she explained.

Mrs. Waltman explained the physical implications of the breast form. "As healing takes place the lack of weight on the side where surgery has been performed causes a slightly tilted posture. The woman must be particularly careful about her posture from the beginning, but it's really incredible what the form does. It returns weight and posture to normal."

FORMS ARE expensive from a low of about $20 to as high as $130. They can be of a variety of types — liquid and/or air-filled, polyester fiber-filled, weighted or unweighted foam rubber and silicone gel-filled.

Some women also prefer a special mastectomy bra with a built-in pocket to hold the form in place and to hold extra filler under the arm and above the breast to fill in the cavity. However, the needs of each mastectomy patient are so individualized that what works for one woman may simply bring problems to another. Many mastectomy patients can wear the same bra style as they did before surgery.

Here are some tips for women seeking an appropriate prosthesis:

- Wear something clingy that will give a clear look at the outline of the bosom when going for the fitting — a Qiana blouse or knit top. This will enable you to really evaluate what looks best. Stripes also aid in balancing.

- Bring a friend or family member who will honestly tell you how you look. A good fitter will also tell you this.

- Be sure that your form matches as closely as possible your other breast — from the sides, bottom, front and top.

- Make sure that spaces from front center of body to each breast are equal and that nipples are on an even line.

"The patient should come out of the fitting room looking just as she did before surgery," said Mrs. Waltman.

As for other fashion, that too depends on the type of surgery performed. Except for bathing suits, in most cases a mastectomy patient can wear the same clothes that she did before surgery with perhaps a tuck here or a seam there.

FOR CAROL, "looking for bathing suits became a full-time hobby. Many of the women would say to me they hadn't even put on a bathing suit since their surgery. We do encourage them to do so and they too begin to realize that things haven't changed that radically," she said. Some women can even wear two piece suits — not a string bikini, said Carol, but a nice-looking suit with some support.

For a long time there were few alternatives to the high-necked solid color suits. "It's nice to see some companies coming out with more interesting styles, pretty prints," said Mrs. Waltman.

Many companies have gone further than swim suits with evening gowns, tennis wear and lingerie for the mastectomy patient. "The manufacturers are finally recognizing that each patient has her own fashion problems and they must make a variety of styles to choose from," said Carol. She noted a few garments that could use improvement including bra slips.

Reach to Recover maintains a list of stores and companies in the Chicago area that sell prostheses and offer fitting services. The list can be obtained by contacting the Northwest area American Cancer Society office, 113 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, 330-3965.

SWIM SUITS, like this one-shouldered model with matching skirt, are included in A Woman's selection of sportswear, lingerie and eveningwear — apparel that presents greatest buying problem for the mastectomy patient.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Seno

A wedding party of 15 stood at the altar of St. Mary's Church, Buffalo Grove, for the Nov. 8 marriage of Constance Jean Meadows and Benjamin Seno, and later 400 guests joined the couple for a sit-down dinner with dancing at Brigante's in Chicago.

Bridesmaids included two other cousins, Sandra and Cathi Berg of Mount Prospect; Jill Springston, Arlington Heights; Laura Wilson, Wheeling; and the groom's cousins, Mary Grieco, Northlake, and Sandra Grieco, Stone Park.

The bride wore a flowing gown of white tulle with Venice lace accents and a chapel-length lace-edged veil attached to a mantilla-style headpiece. Her bouquet was of white gladioli, Garnet roses and baby's breath.

Her attendants wore cranberry colored gowns and carried nosegays of red and white roses and white carnations.

LISA FOSS, 6, of Chicago, a cousin of the groom, was flower girl in a pink dress and carried a basket of pink rose petals.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seno of Melrose Park.

His attendants were Louis Martino, Melrose Park, as best man and groomsmen William Meadows, the bride's brother from Palatine; Michael Olmetti, Melrose Park; John Christl, Winston Park; Benjamin Grieco, Stone Park; and his brothers, Steve and James Seno.

Back from a two-week honeymoon in Florida the newlyweds are living in Chicago. Connie works for Northwestern University, Evanston, and Ben for Suburban Plumbing, Palos Heights.

A successful transplant of greenhouse mum plant

I've been saying for years that greenhouse-forced plants (the kind people receive as gifts) can't be successfully transplanted outdoors. Now comes Adele Vincent to prove me wrong. "Last winter," she writes, "I went to the supermarket and bought three chrysanthemum plants to brighten up the house. After they had finished flowering, I kept on watering them — treating them just like other foliage house plants. Then in the spring, when it was safe to plant outside, I cut them well back and planted them in a sunny spot in the garden. This fall the plants produced a mass of bloom. How's that for getting value for your money?"

I'm thunderstruck, for one thing. And vow to try all over again, as a true pack rat should.

Dear Dorothy: I have a yearning for a holiday table decoration, but the stuff I see in the stores strikes me as too costly. I'm not terribly handy, but perhaps you have something that isn't too hard. Might you? — Marcia Pre-minger through the wire and slip colorful Christmas balls and figures amongst the greenery. What can be easier than this?

Get a board about 5 by 9 inches — anything approximating that size. Cover it with foil and nail on a piece of chicken wire. Pull green branches

Dear Dorothy: Your warning about the dangers of shoulder bags and easily opened clasp purses came to mind when I saw something novel while browsing. It's a smart new purse that contains a burglar alarm that runs on batteries. A loud buzzing sound compels you to keep the clasp fastened — and, of course, gives instant warning if someone else opens it. It's under $20. Struck me as an ideal holiday gift. — Mrs. Sandy Cooper

Honeymoon in San Juan, Florida

A week-long honeymoon in San Juan, Puerto Rico, and Disneyworld, Fla., followed the Nov. 8 wedding of Gloria Gragnani and Len Blaszczyk in St. Raymond's Catholic Church, Mount Prospect.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gragnani of Des Plaines, chose for her wedding a satin gown with beaded Alencon lace accents. Her matching lace Camelot cap held a finger-tip-length veil and she carried a bouquet of carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Paula Wilson, Collinsville, Va., was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a light blue gown with a dark blue velvet jacket. Her accessories were a blue picture hat and a bouquet of gladioli, roses and lily-of-the-valley. Bridesmaids, attired identically to the matron of honor, were Maryann Landise, the bride's cousin from Des Plaines; Judy Collin, Mount Prospect; Karen Klinger, Des Plaines; and Debbie Parlow, the groom's cousin from Oak Forest.

ANDREA INTRIERI, 6, the groom's niece from Oak Forest, appeared as flower girl in a white dress with a light blue bolero. Michael Wilson, 4, the bride's nephew of Collinsville, Va., was ring bearer.

Len, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Blaszczyk, Chicago, was attended by

Mr. and Mrs. Len Blaszczyk

Michael Zatarski, Chicago. Other male attendants were Ernie Jablonski, Denver, Colo.; Dan Cappetto, Hometown, Ill.; Robert Listowski, Chicago; and the bride's brother-in-law, Paul Wilson of Collinsville, Va.

A reception for 270 guests was held at Catina's Jolly Club, Chicago. The couple is now residing in Des Plaines.

Different causes of hepatitis

Would you please answer some questions on hepatitis? There is so much of it around now and also a lot of misinformation about it. too, I would like to know what hepatitis is. Why is it that medication is not given for it, just rest and good food? Is it contagious until the patient's blood tests are normal? Why does it take so long to recover from it? Does smoking slow down the recovery? Why is it that even an occasional beer is forbidden during recovery? How soon after recovery can a person have an occasional beer?

Part of the confusion results from failure to separate the many different forms of liver disease a person can have. Hepatitis only means inflammation of the liver and does not tell you the cause.

You can have hepatitis from infectious agents, and at least two different forms of virus can cause viral hepatitis. You can also have hepatitis from chemical toxins. And, hepatitis may be a complication of several different infectious diseases.

The most common forms of hepatitis are caused by viruses. Most of the medicines we use in infections are antibiotics and are not effective against hepatitis viruses. In many instances about all that can be done is to minimize the damage to the liver and wait for the disease to run its course. The length of time that takes depends a lot on the individual, but it is not just a two-week affair as with the common cold.

IT IS POSSIBLE that a person in-fectd with viral hepatitis will harbor the virus for a lifetime. Such an individual may not be contagious unless his blood is used for a transfusion, or in the preparation of serum. Anyone with a history of infectious hepatitis should never give blood. The blood is tested at the bank for any evidence of such a previous infection.

There is no direct evidence that smoking is harmful to recovery from hepatitis, but it can't be helpful and even in a healthy person it causes some harm. If I had my choice, no one would smoke.

There is abundant evidence that alcohol is a toxin to liver cells. This is not dependent upon a poor diet or anything like that. It is a direct toxic reaction to alcohol. Obviously, when the liver cells are already damaged and trying to recover, you don't want to take a chemical that damages the liver.

ALCOHOL SHOULD BE strictly forbidden until there is good evidence that the liver has completely recovered. This is judged by various tests of liver function and other clinical information the doctor gets from his examination. The length of time it takes for the liver to recover from hepatitis varies greatly, and depends also on how much liver damage has occurred. Obviously, it can be months before a person with severe viral hepatitis can safely drink alcohol again. And, if there has been extensive liver damage, any amount of alcohol poses some hazard.

Everyone in town invited to couple's wedding dance

The whole town of Chippewa Falls, Wis., was invited to the dance which followed the Nov. 14 wedding of Ruth Susanne Trafford of Arlington Heights and James David Clark of Chippewa Falls. Between 400-500 guests greeted the newlyweds at Bresina's Country Villa and danced until the wee hours of morning.

According to a tradition in the town, the family inserts a notice in the local newspaper about the coming event, and everyone who knows the couple is welcome to the party. In this case, the groom's parents, the Kenneth Clarks, who operate a large dairy farm in the area, placed the ad.

Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cris L. Trafford of Arlington Heights, and her bridegroom exchanged vows at 7 p.m. in Zion Lutheran Church, Chippewa Falls. Immediately afterwards there was a church reception for 250 guests before the late evening dance.

RUTH CHOSE A GOWN of ivory satin trimmed in lace and a beaded cap attached to a waist-length veil edged in lace. Her bouquet was of orange roses, yellow carnations, baby's breath and straw flowers.

Sandy Baneck, Hamburg, Wis., was maid of honor, with the bride's sister-in-law, Michelene Trafford, Cincinnati, as bridesmaid. There were two junior bridesmaids: Beverly McLaughlin, Chelsea, Mich., Ruth's cousin, and Judy Clark, the groom's sister.

All the girls wore dresses they had made themselves in deep green with ivory trim. They carried nosegays of rust and yellow mums and straw flow-

The newlyweds are living in Chippewa Falls where the groom is associated with his father in dairy farming.

Need a chuckle? You can find one every day in "Short Ribs", daily cartoon in the HERALD.

The Schoepke boys—over 170 years at The Herald

by MIKE KLEIN

The boy hesitated outside the front door and looked up "Cook County Herald" adorned the building facade in bold, black letters. So this was the newspaper office where they "feared God, told the truth and made money."

If they weren't always successful in those pursuits, at least they tried. Or so the boy had heard.

He'd seen the old building many times. His dad had done some carpentry work there. It resembled the famous Alamo in Texas. There were pictures of that.

Perhaps the youngster had been inside the newspaper office on other days. Now he was coming for an important reason. It was time that William Schoepke's oldest son took his first job.

THERE'D BEEN a newspaper advertisement. H.C. Paddock and Sons, printers and publishers, were looking for backshop help. There was a Christmas rush at hand. This was 1925.

Art Schoepke walked into the newspaper's quarters, then at 11 W. Davis St., Arlington Heights.

"And what might you want this day?" bellowed Charlie Paddock, coowner with his brother, Stuart Sr., in the family business started by their father, Hosea C. Paddock.

"I have come about the job," said the young man.

"So you have, so you have," said Charlie, looking down at the young lad. "You're a bit small and this is no assy job, boy. This is printing and publishing, hard work which taxes even the best man."

THE BOY was not taken aback.

"My father says a full day's work for a full day's pay," replied the Schoepke boy. "You'll get the work."

"I like you boy!" bellowed Charlie. "Your father taught you well. You could be here a long time!"

That conversation never actually occurred. Art cannot remember what they really said, man and boy making a business agreement.

But little did Charlie Paddock know what he was starting that day 50 years ago. For that matter, little did Art Schoepke know.

They say he's always been a quiet, soft spoken man with pride in his work. The pride still shows. Art Schoepke still mans presses for Paddock.

ART'S 50th anniversary with the company was marked Monday, Dec. 1. Only Stuart Sr. and Charlie Paddock have ever served the company longer.

But that's not half the story.

It seems that Art had six sisters and four brothers. The girls never showed much interest in printing, but whenever Charlie Paddock turned around, there was another of Art Schoepke's younger brothers looking for his own job.

First there was Milt. He came to work one year after Art. During the next 48 years, Art and Milt were the backbone of Paddock's commercial printing operation. Milt finally washed off his last printer's ink in February 1974.

Only Butch has gotten away. He worked five years at Paddock, joined the Navy during World War II and came home to eventually found his own typesetting business.

RICH BEGAN running linotype machines 34 years ago. He's still back there, setting headlines and justifying the hot metal type.

Their youngest brother started work one year after Rich. Thirty-three years following his backshop baptism, Bill Schoepke is a Paddock vice president and the production department manager.

Five brothers . . . 170 combined service years.

Art Schoepke took work as a "printer's devil." He swept floors, sorted mail and melted lead bars.

Charlie Paddock ran a small backshop. Paul Arnemann was one of two linotype operators. "They had a woman for a long time, too," said Art. "I can't think of her name."

ED DUENN ran the press. Three men put the pages together.

The staff of The Herald has worked hard to produce a versatile news product, offering its subscribers a blend of local to international items. Not so with Art's first Herald.

"They printed all the happenings, accidents and what people were doing," Art said. "They had a couple columns on how people spent their weekends, visiting relatives or whatever."

"Now, we don't worry about what people did on a weekend, or what relatives they visited, unless you go to Hawaii or something," Art said.

"Do we still have a column like that? Maybe not."

North on Mitchell, east on Sigwalt, north again on Chestnut. Art Schoepke has been walking that route each morning for many years. It's just a couple blocks.

HE'S SEEN all the tough days, the Depression years when Stuart Sr. and Charlie struggled to meet the payroll. "They'd give you two paychecks," remembered Art. "You'd cash one now and cash the second on Tuesday of the next week."

Art Schoepke worked at Paddock when you could still tie your horse to a hitching post in Arlington Heights and go into Cosmin's Saloon for a few beers.

The hitching posts are gone. So is Cosmin's Saloon.

Art helped move from the W. Davis Street site to the current offices two blocks away in 1939 after fire damaged the original site.

Along the way, Art always worked hard. When old Charlie Paddock couldn't fix a broken press, Art usually could. Art always had a knack with those machines. He made them sing.

Only a darn good pressman can do that.

ART SCHOEPKE, veteran pressman, worked for Paddock Publications when you could tie your horse to a hitching post and drink in Cosmin's Saloon. Hitching posts and Cosmin's are gone, but Art celebrated his 50th anniversary this month.

CHIEF IATAN, 2-year-old poodle owned by Kenneth and Lois Woods, is a pool shark. He uses the Woods' coin-operated table.

'Pool-dle' shark dominates table

by SYLVIA MORENO

IATAN, Mo. (UPI) — Pool hustlers beware. Chief Iatan, the pride of this tiny northwest Missouri town, doesn't even need a cue stick to run the table — it's all in his front paws.

The one-year pool veteran is a shaggy black 2-year-old poodle named after the 100-person community. He's owned by Kenneth and Lois Woods, 29-year Iatan residents.

They admit it's their fault the dog dominates the coin-operated pool table in one corner of their small country store.

"I got him started by putting one ball on the table and rolling it into the pocket," Woods says. "I kept putting him up there and he just sort of got interested."

NOW CHIEF Iatan stands against the Woods bedroom door at 7 a.m. some mornings and "barks until we get the quarter," Mrs. Woods says. The Woods live behind their store, so the walk to the cash register isn't far.

Woods racks up the colored balls and Chief Iatan makes his break with a swift kick to the cue ball placed at the opposite end of the table.

The poodle lopes around to the scattered balls, pouncing on them to sink them or bat them in with a variety of trick shots as he hits the cue ball around the table.

"We've thought about inviting Minnesota Fats over for a challenge," Mrs. Woods said.

When Chief "scratches" by pocketing the cue ball, he runs to the end of the table where the ball automatically reappears. He barks until someone places it back on the table, and sometimes even prolongs his game by playing only with the cue ball when he has only two or three balls left on the table, Woods said.

Selling razor blades not only function of reporters

Well, I see where umpire Larry Barnett wants to thumb Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek out for a little uncalled-for bench jockeying.

They didn't throw a white towel out onto the field, sail their helmets into the seats after a called third strike, bump 'em at home plate, or even question his legitimacy or ancestry, or accuse him of betting on games or not bearing down. All they accused him of was blowing a call.

Barnett thinks this is overstepping their function as electronic journalists. This is editorializing, he feels. They should stick to selling razor blades, is Barnett's view.

This is a pretty common misconception of the function of journalism. The first recorded instance of it in wireless journalism was when the late Ted Husing, in a celebrated case, described the playing of Harvard quarterback Barry Wood as "patriotic" one afternoon in which not much else was happening in the world.

Harvard had probably the only student body in the world which would be sure of the exact meaning of that word. So, poor Ted was barred from ever broadcasting Harvard games again, a hardship case in which he had to make do with Notre Dame-Ohio State, Army-Navy, and other lesser functions the rest of his career.

Some years ago, in a burst of unaccustomed diligent reporting, I was forced to call attention to the fact in a football game that a UCLA cornerback went up in the air in the waning minutes of one of those TV-dictated twilight games in the Coliseum and tackled a receiver.

It was a crucial play in that it cost UCLA the ball game and the Rose Bowl. It was a fourth-down pass thrown, in desperation by the USC quarterback and, left alone and disregarded, it would have come to earth not in the hands of a receiver but of the front row customers. In the dim light of a game which had started in bright sunlight and found most of the players' eye pupils still adjusting to the changes, the luckless defender had no choice but to tackle the intended receiver. The ball was lost in the darkness to him.

Jim Murray

The next day, my mail was full of outrage from fans, mostly women, who thought it appalling that a young man's unfortunate lapse had to be singled out — somewhat the same reaction Watergate inspired in certain Republican senators.

I tried to point out to the fans that I went to the game, not with pompons, a Bruin beanie, a carnation in school colors, or a "We're No. 1!" lapel button but — of all things — with a typewriter and notebook. On-field mistakes were part of the story. In this case, the major part.

My readers were not mollified. We were ruining a boy's life, they insisted. Well, the boy's life was not even bruised. Neither, as it happens, was Barry Wood's. He went on to become a famous neurosurgeon in St. Louis, and held in esteem in parts of the world which never heard of the Harvard eleven.

It was Larry Barnett's misfortune to be part of a crew of rookie umpires in the World Series, and to make a call which had "hush" written all over it. A player had dumped a little mis-hit double-play ball in front of the plate, and then had crashed into the Red Sox catcher trying to make that double play, forcing him into a throwing error.

The call did not have "choke" written all over it because Larry Barnett is an American League umpire and stuck to his guns with a stubbornness that not even the storied Bill Klem could have mustered.

In the television booth, Tony Kubek did what a thousand pen-and-ink journalists did — took issue with the call.

Barnett acted as if his mother had turned on him. Like most public figures, he had come to expect the worst from those ink-stained wretches from the papers — but only kid gloves from television. Television was supposed to be seen and not heard from.

He accused Kubek and Gowdy of, among other things, inspiring death threats against him and his family.

Now, while death threats cannot be dismissed lightly, particularly in today's society, it is a fact that, of all the thousands of death threats against athletic figures over the history of sports, the only ones carried out were by Nero.

Ty Cobb used to be threatened weekly. Ruth had threats. Whole football teams have had death threats. They often prove to be the work of unspanked youngsters, or toothless old men in rooming houses, who can suddenly make themselves feel as powerful as Caligula when they get in the privacy of their rooms and the secrecy of the U.S. mails.

We've all gotten death threats. But, when an umpire is considered overly sensitive to criticism from the sideline, baseball has a term for him: "Rabbit ears."

It is singularly appropriate in this instance.

Barnett showed a great deal of class in sticking by his original decision unwaveringly — and in returning to Boston under his own name for games six and seven of the Series.

The right of umpire Larry Barnett to make his call cannot be assailed. The right of Tony Kubek to comment on it cannot either. The right to be wrong is extended to each of them equally. But, it is hoped that this is one case where two rights don't make a wrong.

Safety blitz had Bears' QB thinking

by BOB GALLAS

It's ironic, or perhaps characteristic, that the winning play for the Chicago Bears in their 23-21 win over Detroit Sunday almost wasn't — not if Bear quarterback Bob Avellini "would have had time."

Avellini wanted to call off the play, which sent Roland Harper up the middle on a 27-yard touchdown run.

"Their (Detroit's) safety was blitzing," Avellini said to a swarm of reporters who surrounded the new hero after the game. "But (Dan) Neal (Bear center) made a great down block, and Roland took care of the safety — he ran right over him."

Harper, on the draw play, eluded two defenders' grasps on his TD run that put the Bears ahead for good with 4:22 left in the game. The score was the first as a Bear for Harper, someone who wasn't even thought to have a chance of making the team this year.

"After I got past the line, I said if I got to within the five (yard line) no one was gonna get me. I was aiming to go all the way," said Harper.

Harper's winning score was set up by Craig Clemons who recovered a Lion fumble at the Detroit 42 yard line. A 15-yard pass to Steve Schubert at the 27 then preceded Harper's dramatic run.

If newly-found fame is dazzling Avellini, a first year man from the University of Maryland, he's not showing it. A soft-spoken man, Avellini is confident — very confident. But he sees little difference in himself since coming from number three quarterback to the top spot.

"I am the same guy and will be next week," Avellini said when asked how the change in status was affecting him.

"I maybe was pushed to the background, but I never doubted my ability," Avellini said without a trace of cockiness. "Football is a funny game. I knew my turn was going to come either this year, or next year or even the year after," he said.

It was a day for the previously unassuming members of the Bears to bask in glory, however brief in light of next week's opponent — the powerful St. Louis Cardinals. Besides Avellini and Harper, Schubert, a second-year man from Massachusetts, caught his first three passes of the year for 45 total yards.

And Bo Rather enjoyed his best day since coming to the Bears in a deal with the Miami Dolphins. Rather caught four passes for 123 yards.

Bear coach Jack Pardee was somewhat reserved in his praise for his young squad, admitting "we've come a long way but still have a long way to go. We made two tons of mistakes."

"They (Bears) made the big play," said Pardee. They had a lot of chances to quit, especially in that fourth quarter. It was a badly needed and hard-fought game," Pardee said.

The game started with fists flying and the action kept up intermittently throughout the game. The last time the two teams met in Detroit on Oct. 12, some Bear players said they heard Detroit players laughing at them from the sidelines during the Lions' 27-7 romp over the Bears.

Bear Doug Plank was zapped for a 15-yard personal foul on the third play of the game when he tangled briefly with a member of the Lions.

About six players jumped into a brief skirmish late in the first period, too, and pushing and shoving after the whistle was common throughout the contest.

Pardee apparently is playing the quarterback game on a week-to-week basis. He wouldn't say that Avellini would be his quarterback for the remaining two games on the Bear schedule. Pardee did say Avellini would start against the Cardinals at Soldier Field Sunday.

Avellini said he played one quarter against the Cardinals during the pre-season, but doesn't think much of it. "Preseason and regular season are two different things," said Avellini. "We won't be looking at films of our preseason game with them (the Cardinals) this week."

The Lions were not exactly a powerhouse in Sunday's contest. Despite three touchdowns, the Lions couldn't come up with the big play when they needed it, converting only three of 20 third down attempts. The Bears, meanwhile, weren't much better, converting on only four of 13 third down plays.

Youngest weekly winner wins trip to Rose Bowl

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Mike Chernicky, a quiet 9-year-old from Palatine, will sample the delights of California courtesy of Paddock Publications. His name was extracted from 12 others as the Grand Prize Winner in the second annual Pick The Winners Contest Saturday.

Stuart Paddock, Jr., president and publisher of The Herald, drew Mike's name from the punch bowl to end three months of suspense for the best football prognosticators in the area.

Mike's mother Barbara was on hand for the event at The Brasserie Restaurant in Arlington Heights. His father, Steve, the head baseball coach at Hersey High School, was ill and couldn't attend.

When asked his reaction to winning a free trip to the Rose Bowl game and parade and a guided tour of Disneyland, Mike just smiled. In fact, when asked just about anything Mike just smiled.

Mike, the youngest weekly winner in the contest's history, earned his shot at the trip in the fifth week of the contest, winning on his ninth birthday. Perhaps his toughest decision awaits him, though.

Mike must decide which of his parents accompany him on the TWA flight leaving Dec. 30.

Mike wasn't tipping his hand, though.

When asked about that choice he just smiled.

YOUNG CHAMP. Nine-year-old Mike Chernicky of Palatine proudly holds the ticket that won him a trip to Pasadena, Calif. for the Rose Bowl. Chernicky's name was drawn Saturday as the 12 weekly winners assembled in Paddock Publications' second annual football contest. Sharing this exciting moment with Mike are, from left, Stuart Paddock, Jr., president and publisher of Paddock Publications; Jeff Elliott, director of the Big Ten Service Bureau and the luncheon speaker; Dave Roe, vice president and general manager of Paddock Publications; Barbara Chernicky, mother of the trip winner; Charlie Dickinson and Bob Frisk of The Herald sports department; and Dan Baumann, editor and vice president.

UNPATRIOTIC. Brian Begrowicz of Wheeling drives for a layup against Stevenson Saturday. Begrowicz pitched in with eight points and four assists as the Wildcats downed the Patriots, 51-48.

Danny Muenz won three individual titles and placed second in two other events to lead the Hersey Huskies to the championship of the Evanston Invitational Saturday night.

The Hersey senior clicked like the veteran he is to win the high bar (7.6), P-Bars (8.35) and all-around (7.56) titles as the Huskies topped defending state champ Hinsdale Central 90.71 to 85.61. Niles West placed third at 74.43, Niles East fourth with 71.20 and the host Wildkats fifth at 67.08.

"Hinsdale was our only real competition," said Huskie coach Don Von Ebers, "but Danny was a good solid, steady performer. He did a double full twister on the mats and stuck it nice."

"This meet picked up our hopes considerably."

Hinsdale was competing without Breck Grigas, their number one all-arounder who only recently had a cast removed from a broken leg, but Von Ebers is teary of the Red Devils' chances at repeating as state champions.

"When Grigas gets back they'll be better," Von Ebers commented, "but if they're going to win it again they'll have to come on awfully strong. They didn't look too tough."

Muenz was aided in the meet's all-arounder-specialist format by Bob Barut (third on free ex at 7.55), Ray Peters (third on tramp at 7.0) and Rich Stange (third on P-Bars at 6.85).

LaGrange's Jim Vokurka fired 7.42 all-around score to lead his team to a 133.92 to 122.85 dual meet win over the Prospect Knights Saturday.

Vokurka captured the free ex (8.35), P-Bars (7.15) and rings (7.8) to win the all-around title.

Prospect's Doug Zahour popped an 8.0 on the mats and won the trampoline title with a score of 7.5.

Dave Scheible of Prospect won the side horse event with a mark of 8.2

NFL miracles! Bears and Chargers win

Figure the odds. National Football League fans, on the Chicago Bears and San Diego Chargers both winning on the same afternoon.

It happened on Dec. 7, 1975.

The Bears knocked off the Detroit Lions in a wild game in Soldier Field, 25-21, and San Diego, winless this fall in 11 previous games, surprised Kansas City, 28-20.

There were other noteworthy achievements on this Sunday, but when the Bears and Chargers both win on the same day, that's the most shocking news.

Roland Harper pulled out of the grasp of two tacklers and raced 27 yards for a touchdown with 4:22 left to give the Bears a come-from-behind 25-21 triumph over the Detroit Lions, breaking a three-game losing streak.

The Bears turned Detroit turnovers into points to win. Harper's 27-yard run came after Detroit's Horace King fumbled and Craig Clemons recovered for the Bears on the Lions' 42. The Bears' first touchdown came after Clemons hit Detroit quarterback Joe Reed while he attempted to pass in the end zone and his wounded duck pass was intercepted on the Lions' 20.

The Bears' Walter Payton then scored the first of his two touchdowns from the four. Payton's second score came on a five-yard run to give the Bears a 19-7 lead midway through the third period.

Reed brought the Lions from behind to a 28-19 lead with two quick touchdown passes to Marlin Briscoe. The first score covered 15 yards with 20 seconds left in the third period and the second came on a 59-yard pass play with only 49 seconds gone in the final period. The second touchdown was set up when Dick Jauron intercepted Bear quarterback Bob Avellini's pass on the Detroit 37.

It was Jauron's fourth interception this year and the ninth of his career. Six of the nine have come against the Bears. It also was his last hurrah as he left the game and it was announced he would undergo surgery on his knee Monday.

Bob Thomas kicked field goals of 36 and 41 yards for the Bears but had one field goal try blocked, an extra point attempt blocked and he missed on his last extra point try.

Detroit's first touchdown went to Al-tie Taylor on a one-yard plunge the first time the Lions had the ball but Thomas' first field goal and Payton's first TD put the Bears ahead for the first time since they beat Green Bay four weeks ago.

Avellini made his second start as the Bears' quarterback, completing his first six passes for 94 yards. He wound up with 204 yards passing, hitting 11-of-19 attempts with two interceptions.

Reed, who took over as the Detroit quarterback when Greg Landry and Bill Musson required knee surgery, hit 14-of-33 passes for 220 yards but missed four straight in the final three minutes inside the Bears' 30 to kill off Detroit's last scoring chance.

NFL roundup

San Diego triumphs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — San Diego backs Rickie Young and Sam Scarber ran for three touchdowns and quarterback Dan Fouts added another to lead the Chargers to their first victory this season, 28-20 over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Young ran five yards up the middle for a touchdown in the first quarter and scored on a three-yard run in the fourth. Scarber scored his touchdown from the eight in the third quarter and Fouts, who had missed several games with a bruised shoulder, ran nine yards for a score in the final.

The Chiefs scored on field goals of 21 and 22 yards by Jan Stenerud and on a touchdown run by Woody Green. The other Chiefs score was on a 17-yard pass from Len Dawson to Barry Pearson.

San Diego led 7-3 at the end of the first quarter and 7-6 at the half. The Chiefs took the lead briefly in the third quarter after safety Mike Sensibaugh picked off a tipped Fouts' pass and returned to the San Diego 15. Dawson completed his TD pass to Pearson to give the Chiefs a 20-14 third quarter lead.

But San Diego came right back, scoring 58 seconds into the fourth period when Young ran in from the three. Fouts put the game out of reach on the Chargers' next possession when he ran out of the pocket and scored from the Kansas City nine-yard line.

Tarkenton hot again

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Fran Tarkenton threw for three touchdowns, giving him a career total of 289 — just one short of John Unitas' National Football League record — to power the Minnesota Vikings to a 24-3 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

Tarkenton, who already has eclipsed the retired Baltimore Colt great's completion mark, hit 28-of-39 passes for 211 yards, including two scoring passes to John Gilliam and one to Chuck Foreman, who left the game in the third period with bruised ribs.

Foreman, the NFC leader in rushing, receptions and touchdowns, carried 13 times for 64 yards and caught six passes from Tarkenton for 81 yards. Foreman has 961 yards rushing, just 11 short of the Vikings' single-season record of 972 set by Dave Osborn in 1967.

The victory lifted Minnesota's record to 11-1. Green Bay dropped to 3-9.

Sluggish Rams win

NEW ORLEANS — Linebacker Jim Peterson ran a fumble back 67 yards and defensive end Jack Youngblood scored a safety, leading the playoff-bound and offensively sluggish Los Angeles Rams to a 14-7 win over the hapless New Orleans Saints.

Former Saint Tom Dempsey kicked field goals of 47 and 37 yards, the only points scored by the Rams' offensive unit.

Saints quarterback Archie Manning threw a five-yard touchdown pass to Paul Seal in the final quarter for New Orleans' only score.

Peterson grabbed control of a fumble in the third quarter after it changed hands several times in a single play.

It started when the Saints punted from their own 37. Jim Bertelsen took the kick at his own 10 and ran back to the 23, where he fumbled after he was hit. The ball squirted under a big pile of players fighting for it and bounced 10 yards upfield, where Peterson got control and ran up an open field into the Saints' end zone.

The point-after try was off to the left, making the score an unusual 8-0. The Rams led at the half 2-0 on the safety scored when Manning dropped back from his own 13 in a passing attempt and Youngblood nailed him in his own end zone.

Cardiac Cards roll

ST. LOUIS — The Cardiac Cards failed to live up to their name.

St. Louis rolled past the Dallas Cowboys 31-17, steaming into sole possession of first place in the National Football Conference's Eastern Division and knocking the Cowboys into a second place tie with the Washington Redskins.

And St. Louis didn't even have to pull out the victory in the final minutes.

"This was something new to us," Cardinals' quarterback Jim Hart said. "We had tended (in the past) to be a little conservative in the first half."

Sunday, Hart fired three touchdown passes in the first half, including tosses of six and 49 yards to fleet Mel Gray.

"We were able to play prevent defense in the second half," he said. "It was a different type of pressure — we were pressed to keep our lead intact."

Contrary to past practices of using the first half as a warmup for a heart-straining finish, the Cardinals held a 28-3 lead at halftime and coasted the rest of the way.

The victory gave them a one-game lead on Dallas and Washington with two games to play. While St. Louis has games remaining with Detroit and Chicago, the Cowboys and Redskins meet next Sunday.

"We could have helped ourselves a lot by beating the Cards today," said Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach. "It's going to make it that much harder against Washington next week."

St. Louis running back Terry Metcalf, who accounted for the first Cardinal score almost single-handedly, summed it up: "This was the big one. We really wanted it so bad."

Miami still on top

MIAMI — Don Strock, a third-string quarterback making his first NFL start, passed for two touchdowns and ran for another to give the Miami Dolphins a 31-21 win over the Buffalo Bills and keep them on top in the AFC East.

Strock, playing for the injured Bob Griese and Earl Morrall, built a 21-0 halftime lead but then the Dolphins had to hold off a furious Buffalo rally in the second half.

The clinching touchdown, a one-yard burst by Norm Bulaich with 8:12 left in the game, was set up by a 55-yard ramble over left tackle by stubby fullback Don Nottingham.

The Bills looked like they were coming right back but their fourth quarter drive was aborted when Dolphin safety Jake Scott intercepted a Joe Ferguson pass on the Miami 10 and returned it to the 32.

Miami (9-3) stayed one game ahead of Baltimore and dimmed the playoff prospects for the Bills (7-5), who dropped two games back. Miami plays the Colts, now 3-4, in Baltimore next weekend.

Oilers clip 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO — Willie Rodgers and Ronnie Coleman ran for a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns, Coleman's coming after a 76-yard punt return by Billy Johnson, to give the Houston Oilers a 27-13 victory over the San Francisco 49ers.

The victory was Houston's eighth against four losses but it came too late to keep the Oilers in the race for the AFC wild card berth in the playoffs. When Cincinnati beat Philadelphia earlier in the day, that eliminated Houston.

Dan Pastronini completed 11-of-23 passes for 118 yards and the Houston rushing game accounted for another 170 yards. The 49ers, meanwhile, gained only five yards rushing against the Houston defense while three quarterbacks, starting with Steve Spurrier, completed 18 passes for 195 yards.

Baltimore set up its showdown with Miami as Lydell Mitchell rushed for 119 yards to become the first Colt running back ever to gain 1,000 yards in a single season as he sparked a 21-0 win over the New York Giants. The victory was the Colts' eighth against four losses.

Bulls, Black Hawks fail to join Bears in victory column

It probably would have been too much to ask to have the Chicago Bulls, Black Hawks and Bears all win on the same Sunday. They didn't. The Bears did their part in the afternoon, but the Bulls and Black Hawks lost in the evening.

Host Phoenix stormed out to a 57-48 halftime advantage and then cruised to a 114-87 victory over the Bulls. John Laskowski had 19 second half points for Chicago who were never able to shake off a sluggish start.

Atlanta counted at 17:10 in the first period of its 2-0 victory over the Black Hawks in the Stadium. The Flames' Tom Lysiak did the honors against Tony Esposito, and then Curt Bennett scored on an empty net in the closing seconds.

The Hawks now own a 10-6-11 record and 31 points in the Smythe Division.

Raiders, Broncos collide

Operating on the Al Davis theory that winning is everything, the Oakland Raiders take on the nice and loose Denver Broncos Monday night in the NFL nationally televised game as if their very lives depended on the outcome.

The Raiders, pro football's most successful team over the last 14 years but not necessarily the happiest because of continued failure to make it to the Super Bowl, wrapped up the AFC West title last Sunday with an overtime victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

They were 14 points favorites in that game and are picked by the same margin over the Broncos, who failed to challenge Oakland this year because of a series of injuries to key players. While the Raiders are 9-2, the Broncos are 5-6 and merely playing out the string.

Still, some of the Raiders' toughest games in the last three years have been against the John Ralston-led Broncos, and Monday night's game figures to continue the trend.

Miller, Graham take World Cup

Johnny Miller and Lou Graham of the United States conquered the intense heat Sunday in a head-on clash with Hsieh Min-nan and Kuo Chie-hsiung of Taiwan and won the 23rd World Cup team championship by an overwhelming 10-stroke margin in Bangkok.

Miller also captured the individual trophy for the second time. He previously won it in the 1973 World Cup tournament in Marabell, Spain, where he teamed with Jack Nicklaus to win the team championship.

Miller had a 13-under-par 275 on the 6,906-yard par 72 Navatanee Golf Club course.

"We came here to win the team championship and I am glad I won the individual trophy as a bonus," Miller said. "It is good to play without consideration of money and once in a while representing your country."

The United States captured the winning team prize of $2,000 and Miller won the individual prize of $1,000.

Japan finished third with an 11-under par 565, Australia was fourth at 10-under 566 and Argentina fifth at five-under 551.

Miller shot a four-under par 68 and Graham a two-under par 70 against Hsieh's one-over par 73 and Kuo's two-over par 74.

Nastase wins Masters -- again

Ilie Nastase, turning on his talent instead of his temper, Sunday defeated Sweden's Bjorn Borg 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 to win the $130,000 Masters Tennis Tournament in Stockholm the fourth time in six years.

The mercurial Romanian, whose volcanic temper has won him more headlines than his tennis this year, swept Borg off his home court in just five minutes over one hour with a display of vintage tennis.

Borg, who at 19 is 19 years Nastase's junior, had a nightmare final. Nastase took control from the start on the Royal Tennis Hall's slow synthetic surface and only allowed Borg one chance to break his service.

Nastase collected $40,000 on his third wedding anniversary which helped defray the cost of a $2,000 fur coat he bought for his wife, Dominique. "I had to win, you see," he said.

Area shows strength in Saturday basketball action

A Herald Staff Report

Not bad, not bad at all. Herald area basketball teams matched up remarkably well Saturday evening with some opponents of stature and walked off with six wins — and one near-miss.

Buffalo Grove, Arlington, Wheeling, Fremd, Palatine and Maine West landed the victories and Hersey just missed topping Elgin in a very impressive evening of non-conference scuffling.

A report on the battle between area clubs, Rolling Meadows and St. Viator, appears elsewhere.

BISON TIP 2-B

Despite an uncanny display of marksmanship by Rob Judson, Buffalo Grove fended off a last-ditch charge to stop Zion-Benton, 50-48.

Judson, son of Zee Bee coach Phil Judson who played on the state championship Hebron team in 1952, poured in 29 points, including eight during Zion's last quarter rally. Hosting Grove had entered the final stanza owning a comfortable eight-point cushion.

"What can I say," sighed Bison coach Paul Grady, "Judson didn't get any of his points cheaply. He's just an exceptionally polished ballplayer."

Grady's bunch showed some polish of their own. Brian Allsmiller bucketed 24 in a winning cause, including his 1,000th career point on a base line 10-footer with 6:22 showing on the clock in the third quarter.

And defensive denizen George Bastable, who Grady started on an impulse, came up with some offensive antics of his own to help Buffalo Grove in the second half. Finally, it was the free throw shooting of Mike Ledna which kept the visitors in check.

"Our defense played super tonight despite Judson's show," Grady explained. "Their defense did an excellent job too... we've been averaging around 70 points a game this season."

The Grove defense was a mixture of zone and man-to-man and it limited Zion-Benton to just four points in the opening period and 16 by intermission. In the meantime, the Bison led all the way, and after Allsmiller notched his 1,000th, he faked a jump from the key and fed down to Tim Stonerook underneath for two more and then hit on a turnaround 10-footer to push his club into a 38-20 lead.

From then on the Zee Bees were never closer than six until 1:57 remained in the game and Abe Woods struck from the corner to shave the gap to 44-42.

Ledna hit twice from the line but Woods dropped in another 12-footer. Ledna connected on two more free throws, but Judson responded with a pair of 20-footers, the second coming with only 14 seconds to go.

There was still time for Buffalo Grove to miss a free throw and Judson to finally lose the range — on a desperation 50-footer just as the buzzer sounded.

The win was Buffalo Grove's fifth straight and sixth in seven tries overall. Zion is now 5-2.

CARDS TOP BRONCOS

Ken Johnston came off the bench and pumped in 11 points — the final two on a layup after he stole a pass with just 15 seconds left — to pace Arlington to a thrilling 53-51 triumph over Barrington.

The 5-foot-11 junior guard entered the game in the second quarter and immediately made his presence felt, both offensively and on the boards as he paced the Cardinals in rebounding with nine.

"He really picked us up," Arlington coach Don Drain said of his spunky sub. "Things weren't looking up, but the kids didn't panic and kept their poise."

After a quick 16-11 start out of the gate, Arlington maintained the lead until midway through the fourth quarter when Barrington rallied for a 45-41 advantage.

The Cardinals, already suffering from the loss of 6-3 forward Greg Kloiber who sprained his ankle in practice and will be out for three weeks, were also operating with the limited services of the team's leading scorer Jim Grandt who was plagued by foul problems.

But Arlington regrouped, tied the score at 51 on Greg Jantsch's two free throws and earned its second triumph in five decisions on Johnston's sparkling theft.

Grandt paced the Cardinals with 17 points, Tom North popped in 13 and Jantsch and Zobel each kicked in a half-dozen. Arlington won the rebound battle 29-26 and outscored the Broncos from the field, 20 buckets to 19 — courtesy of Ken Johnston.

WILDCATS WIN, 51-48

Karl Krueger converted a three-point play to break a 44-44 deadlock and propel Wheeling into a 51-48 triumph over hosting Stevenson.

The Wildcats started off red hot and finished ice cold but still managed to ride Keith Schildt's strong inside game to their fourth win in six outings. Schildt finished with a game-high 26 points and contributed 14 rebounds to the Wheeling effort.

"We just went stone cold in the second half," observed Wheeling pilot Ted Ecker. "I felt it happening after we started off so strongly. We shot them right out of their zone defense in the early going but later on couldn't hit a thing... even though we were getting the shots."

The 'Cat field goal tempo in the first quarter was a torrid 73 per cent and by halftime the guests owned a healthy 35-22 command. Ecker's crew subsequently notched only seven points in the third period as the Patriots pecked away.

After Krueger broke the deadlock, Schildt hit from underneath to put the game away. Brian Begrowicz backed up Schildt with eight points and four assists while Ray Cordes led Stevenson in scoring with 14.

FREMD IN WEEKEND SWEEP

A ferocious full court press, a 46-point performance by their guards and some solid rebounding gave the Fremd Vikings a weekend sweep Saturday night, defeating hosting Lake Forest 81-67.

"The biggest factor was our press," said Fremd coach Mo Tharp. "In the third and fourth quarter, it really committed a lot of turnovers. We really went after them."

Leading the Vikings was the back-court combination of Rick Kolke and Dale Hallberg. Kolke poured in 27 points, including 16 in the pivotal second half that saw Fremd breakaway from a 34-31 halftime lead en route to its third straight win (3-2). Hallberg tossed in 11 of his 19 points in the final half.

Paul Gillette led the rest of the Vikings in blocking out well to snare many rebounds. Gillette had 13 points, David Mize 12 and Kerry Field 9. Mize came off the bench to help spark the team as he had done in the Elgin Larkin win Friday.

PIRATES WIN IN OT

Palatine evened its nonconference record at 3-3 with a 61-60 victory in overtime against a physical Warren host Saturday night.

The Pirates got 27 points from 6-foot-6 junior center Kevin McKenna, including six points in the extra period after McKenna had spent much of the second half on the bench in foul trouble.

"In the overtime we had a little different wrinkle in our offense," said Palatine coach Ron Flatrock. "We got McKenna open for three good shots." Palatine had edged into a lead late in the fourth quarter, but Warren's Blue Devils of the Northwest Suburban Conference tied the game on the outside shooting of Keith Surroz and Mike Hendee, sending the teams into overtime.

Coupled with the Pirates' 60-54 win over Maine North on Friday, the victory at Warren gave Flatrock's squad an even slate for the first six games of the season. Palatine won't take the court again until Dec. 19 when the Pirates host Wheeling in the first Mid-Suburban contest for both teams.

WARRIORS STUN LIBERTYVILLE

The Maine West Warriors, still high from their first win in nine years over Maine South, overcame a 12-point Libertyville lead in the final quarter to stun the Wildcats, 60-55.

Down by 12 with six minutes to go, the Warriors stormed back behind the hot shooting of junior Pete Karabas who came off the bench in the second half to score five baskets. Karabas led all scorers with 18 points and eight rebounds.

Junior Bob Zuccarini hit three baskets and three free throws in the final stanza to lead the final charge. Zuccarini finished the night with 16 points.

The Warriors tied the score with 49 seconds left. Shutting out the Wildcats

Ken Johnston

In the final minute, West took the lead for good on a Karabas bucket. A free throw by Dave Kennedy and two more by Zuccarini led it for the Warriors.

Cold free throw shooting sealed the doom of the Wildcats, now 3-2 on the season. The Cats hit on only two of nine charity tosses in the second half.

The win evened West's record at 3-3. The Warriors travel to conference foe Niles North Friday before entertaining Glenbrook North in a conference game at home Saturday.

ELGIN NIPS HERSEY

If Clyde Glass's 10-footer had gone in with three seconds left at Elgin Saturday night, the Hersey Huskies would have pulled off their biggest upset since they knocked off Waukegan in the supersectional two years ago.

But Glass's jump shot hit the rim and fell away, so the touted Elgin Maroons, now 4-0, escaped with a 37-36 win.

Hersey had battled back from a 10-point deficit midway through the second period as Glass found the range from his favorite spot — about 15 feet away on the baseline. Glass also located pivotman Tom Burzak a couple of times underneath. Burzak, who finished with 14 points, is deadly from inside.

The Huskies fell behind again, 52-46, in the fourth quarter as Elgin's 6-foot-6 center Randy Roland and 6-7 Tim Hale began taking the ball to the hoop.

That's when Hersey's 6-8 Jay McDermott went on a scoring spree with three straight baskets, including a tip-in, a 20-footer, and a short turnaround.

McDermott's final basket with 2:16 left gave Hersey a 54-53 lead, but four straight Huskie turnovers kept them from padding the margin. Then, facing a fullcourt Maroon press, the Huskies tossed the ball away and Hale cashed an easy layup for a one-point Elgin lead.

With 48 seconds left, Elgin's Steve Hollingsworth put in his own missed free throw and Hersey was down by three.

Burzak scored to cut the lead and the Huskies, employing their own full-court pressure, stole the ball. Glass got his shot but it failed to go in.

Roland was the game's high scorer with 21 points. Glass finished with 18. McDermott had 14 points and 12 rebounds.

"We're going to make some noise this year," said Hersey coach Roger Steingraber, whose team is 3-2 and about ready to face Mid-Suburban League competition for the first time Tuesday against Forest View.

LAKE PARK THUMPS CONANT

The Conant Cougars lost starting forward Mike Frisch to a wrist injury early in the game and that proved to be the difference as Lake Park prevailed 60-50 in a non-conference tussle.

"Mike is the guy who keeps everybody on their toes out there," said Conant coach Dick Redlinger, "and when we lost him they got down on themselves."

Conant lead much of the first half and at intermission but saw that lead disappear in the second half as Lake Park pulled away.

"It was close all the way but then we missed a couple easy ones and that was it," Redlinger said.

Rob Totten lead Conant with 11 points.

Frisch's wrist injury, at first feared to be a fracture, was not as serious as thought and he may be ready for the Cougars MSL showdown with Prospect Tuesday.

Joliet hands Harper fifth loss, 81-73

Harper's Jim Arden dialed 27 points but Joliet's depth and backboard domination sent the Hawks to their fifth loss in six games 81-73 at St. Viator Saturday night.

The Wolves, shuttling fresh troops into the fray all evening, hammered the outmanned Hawks on the boards 48-20 and rip off 12 straight points in the second half to break open a close game.

The Hawks had fought through the first half, trailing most of the way, to tie the contest at 39 at intermission and opened a four-point lead in the second half as Arden hit for 10 of their first 12 points.

But six points by Joliet's Steve Decker, and two each from Kevin Merkel, Tim Helms and Dennis Cleveland turned a 53-51 Harper lead into a 63-53 Joliet pad that the Hawks never overcame.

"It's hard to win when you don't get the boards," said Harper's Roger Bechtold. "We have two fair rebounders, Scott Green and Wally Butman, but they can't do everything for us."

"Arden is a fine shooter but he's small and doesn't jump well and having those small forwards really hurt us."

Green led Harper's rebounders with five and added seven points while Butman got two caroms and five points. Arden did not have a single rebound.

"We showed a lot of improvement in the things we worked hard on this week," Bechtold continued. "I was pleased with the improvement the guards made in bringing the ball up-court."

"Van (McLeod) and Steve (Loughman) both did a better job than they did against Illinois Valley."

McLeod, the freshman waterbug from Forest View, had a fine offensive showing with 13 points. Loughman added 11, most of them coming on long jumpers, to round out Harper's double figure scoring.

Joliet, which improved its record to 3-4, had four players in double figures with Heintz getting 21 and eight rebounds, Merkel 15 and eight rebounds, Decker 11 points and 11 rebounds and Bob Brown 10.

'New look' Meadows rocks St. Viator

"We stood around like a bunch of buffaloes Friday night," Rolling Meadows head coach Bill Weinberg admitted after a loss to Prospect.

But Weinberg's herd of buffalo went on a stampede the following night while shellacking St. Viator, 57-38. "We started a different lineup — a smaller but quicker one," the first-year Mustang coach explained. "We just weren't hitting the boards or being aggressive enough on offense."

But Viator will attest that Weinberg's juggling act came up three bars on the slot machine and a 19-point jackpot.

With Noe Nunez and Ken Breitbeil at guards, John Carbery and Terry Moran at forwards and Steve Duffy in the pivot, the Mustangs galloped to a 45-20 landslide after three periods before the wholesale bench-clearing began.

So effective was Meadows' 2-3 zone defense that Viator counted just one field goal in the second quarter and the Lions' versatile 6-foot-9 pivotman Glenn Girard was shut out completely.

"We fronted him down low with two or three of our guys sagging on him," Weinberg explained of the Mustangs' successful defense of Girard. "We figured he couldn't score without the ball and we prevented their guards from setting him up."

The Lions, content to pop from the perimeter of the zone, hit for a paltry 27 per cent from the field while Meadows countered with a sizzling 50 per cent ratio at the other end of the floor. Equally important, though, was the Mustangs' 32-20 margin on the boards.

The balanced triumph boosted Meadows record to 2-4 while the defeat left St. Viator at 1-5.

Christmas spirit at the race track

To the 175 youngsters from Maryville Academy, the person, running around with a white beard and the red suit, should have been Ernie Poulos.

Instead, Santa Claus was portrayed by Jeanette Gscheidle (see story below). Poulos was too busy Sunday rushing around at the Arlington Park Race Track, making sure the residents of the Des Plaines children's home had a good time at his Christmas party.

The modest Poulos said, "It does my heart good to see these kids here."

The real Santa — Ernie Poulos.

Smothered in feathers and affection.

"He looks real."

We may do it: official

Balanced '76 budget without tax boost

Des Plaines may be able to balance the 1976 city budget without additional tax increases, according to a city official.

City Comptroller Duane L. Blietz said recent increases in garbage pick-up fees, liquor licenses, vehicle license transfer fees, licenses for large trucks and the city's property tax may bring in enough revenue to make further increases unnecessary.

He said he is in the process of determining the amount of revenue the increases will bring to the city.

"I don't know how much at this time, but I will know very soon," Blietz said.

CITY OFFICIALS began looking for new sources of revenue after Blietz said the city would need an additional $800,000 to $900,000 next year to meet rising costs for materials and services.

Under consideration by the city council as possible sources of revenue are adoption of a real estate transfer tax on all property transactions and a 5 per cent utility tax on telephone, electric and natural gas bills.

Blietz said Friday that the city may not need as much revenue as he predicted if the city council decides to cut expenses in some areas.

"There is another way of balancing the budget other than by increasing revenue and raising taxes," he said. "We can cut expenses."

THE COMPTROLLER would not speculate on where expenses might be cut, saying that the city council would have to make the decision.

"We will be discussing this in the finance committee meetings on the budget that are coming up," he said. "I don't know what will be done, but we will be looking for ways to save money."

Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, chairman of the city council's finance committee, said recently that officials will consider ways of reducing the city's work force and revising employee salary scales to save money.

Blietz said he is preparing a tentative budget that will be reviewed by the finance committee. He would not predict whether the 1976 budget will be higher than this year's city budget of $14 million.

THE COMPTROLLER said that although city officials are considering a real estate transfer tax, he does not think it will be adopted.

"I don't think the city council wants that and I'd have to agree with them," Blietz said.

City officials said a utility tax would bring the city about $15 million in revenue annually.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, a supporter of the tax, has said that while it would be unpopular with residents, he believes it is needed. He said he would rather have the city adopt a utility tax than continue to mckel-and-dime residents with increases in city fees.

Several weeks ago, the city council was about to adopt the real estate transfer tax, but decided to reconsider it because of opposition from residents and local realtors.

If the tax is approved, the seller of a home or property which sells for $50,000 would be assessed $100. City officials estimate the tax would bring the city $100,000 a year.

Blood drive today at public library

The North Suburban Blood Center will conduct a blood drive today at the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland Ave.

The drive will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Anyone wishing to donate blood should call the city's health department at 297-1200 for an appointment.

Donors must be 17 to 66 years old and in good health.

Under the city's blood program, all residents and their immediate families are eligible for free blood replacement provided 4 per cent of the city's population donates a pint of blood each year.

Pace of recession recovery slows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pace of recovery from the recession is slowing.

Economists expected it to slow — it could not long sustain its breakneck speed of the early autumn — but there are signs that something more serious than mere moderation has set in.

This is the picture which emerges from a mixed set of economic statistics from recent weeks. Unemployment fell from 8.6 to 8.3 per cent, a sharp drop, and down significantly from the recession's peak of 9.2 per cent in May. But total employment, a more significant indication of the nation's economic health, also declined.

On the inflation front, another mixed picture: the cost of living, reflecting consumer prices, rose when last measured, in October, at a sharp rate. But wholesale prices, in November, recorded a zero change — mainly because volatile food prices declined enough to offset increases in industrial prices.

The index of economic indicators, which is intended to foretell the economy's future path, declined in October, for the second straight month.

Here is a summary of the latest figures:

• UNEMPLOYMENT: Unemployment fell 0.3 per cent to 8.3 per cent in November — the sharpest decline in six months — because of recalls among laid off family men and a big decline in job seekers. But there was also a slight decline in total employment.

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Santas are a dime a dozen around the Northwest suburbs this time of year, but Jeanette Gscheidle is one of a kind.

The Palatine mother of four makes her national debut as the merry "gentleman" from the North this month on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show."

Mrs. Gscheidle called The Herald offices late Sunday to say she will appear on Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow Show" at midnight tonight.

But Santa is no newcomer to suburbanites who now are accustomed to seeing a woman in the Santa suit cruising down the highway. They simply wave and remark that it must be that time of year again.

Every year Mrs. Gscheidle dons a red suit and white beard to make the rounds at local public schools, schools for the handicapped and homes for the elderly. She never comes empty handed, thanks to donations from individuals and local stores.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE chuckles that she is particularly suited for the role since she weighs about 300 pounds.

"I'm built for it," she said with a laugh.

Her Totie Fields sense of humor probably contributes most to this Santa's genuine jolliness.

A friend thought Santa would be the perfect guest on Carson's late night talk show so she sent photos and newspaper clippings describing Santa's exploits in the Northwest suburbs. Much to Mrs. Gscheidle's surprise, she received a phone call from the network last month asking if she would be available for an appearance.

She'll make the all-expense paid trip to California soon and hopes the show will be aired sometime during Christmas week although the exact date has not been set. She plans to use the money she will be paid to cover the cost of a new $300 Santa suit, a copy of the one worn by Bing Crosby in the movie "White Christmas."

Mrs. Gscheidle is a bit nervous about being broadcast nationwide before millions of viewers. "I want to get there, get it over with and get back," she said.

SHE ADMITS, with an impish grin, that she has done "a few nutty things" while in disguise. Last year she walked into the Palatine Post Office and asked for her mail. After some bewildered stammerings, the postal clerk finally handed over a sack full of letters addressed to Santa Claus.

"Who's going to say no to a giant in a Santa Claus suit?" Mrs. Gscheidle said.

The post office now has agreed to keep her mail, and Mrs. Gscheidle tries to answer the children's letters.

Then there was the time when Santa and her son stopped at the local Jack-In-The-Box for a hamburger. She drove up to the outside speaker and ordered, "ho hoing into the microphone." The waitress appreciated the joke but was startled when Santa drove up in costume to claim the meal. Mrs. Gscheidle still remembers the looks on the faces of the cooks, waitresses and customers who ran to the window for a peek.

Starting Wednesday, Mrs. Gscheidle begins her annual whirlwind tour visiting 300 to 400 children each day. Each child receives a bag of goodies including candy and small toys.

When she visits homes for the elderly, she gives bags containing stationery, pens, calendars, combs and toiletries.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE has had many generous donations of gifts from individuals and local businesses. Bob's Union 76, her local service station, gave her $50 in gasoline "for the sled." When Santa was at the beauty shop this week a customer overheard her talking about her program and left a check and a note of good wishes for her at the front counter.

"If everybody helps it all adds up," said Mrs. Gscheidle. That's what Christmas is all about — the joy of giving unselfishly, she said.

Persons who wish to reach Santa can call her on her special Santa line, 991-4278, or simply write Santa, 620 W. Colfax Ave., Palatine, 60067.

Members of Elk Grove High School's Student Council and Spanish Club are sponsoring a toy and canned goods collection to benefit underprivileged children and families at La Casa Central and the Rockwell Day Care Center.

For every used toy donated to the Spanish Club, Chicago's Toy World will donate a brand new toy for the children. Gift wrapped toys should be brought to the high school, 500 W. Elk Grove Blvd., Room 252, before Dec. 17.

Student council members will go door-to-door, caroling for canned goods and donations of usable clothing, Dec. 15-17.

Members of the Student Council and the Spanish Club will deliver the gifts to the two centers before Christmas and will add a gift of their own — a candy-filled pinata.

For information, contact Charles Aldrich, at Ext. 37 or Ann Garcia at Ext. 72, at Elk Grove High School, 439-4800.

Rolling Meadows High School's jazz ensemble will entertain at the Old Chicago Amusement Park and Shopping Mall Thursday at 8 p.m.

The American Field Service chapter of Buffalo Grove High School is currently looking for potential host families for 16 to 18-year-old foreign exchange students who will be here for the 1976-77 school year.

The scholarship program covers most of the expenses for taking care of the students. For information contact Mrs. Marvin Clays, 259-8828.

Jill Schoeffler and Lynn Scopa, Forest View High School students, took first and second place respectively for their entries in the Mount Prospect Park District's winter-spring brochure design contest.

First prize was a $25 U.S. Savings Bond. Second prize was a $25 certificate for any park district program.

Jill and Lynn submitted their designs through the school's art department.

Students from Arlington High School will be working with the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce to publish a community brochure. The students will do the research, prepare the copy and design the format for the project which should be completed in March.

Work plan for youths established by officials

Des Plaines and Maine Township officials have signed an agreement establishing a youth work program for area high school students.

The program, which will go into operation immediately and run until next March, will be funded by the township and managed by the city.

The students will be employed in temporary positions in various city departments. They must be under 18, residents of the township and have to be referred to the program by school counselors, police juvenile officers or the courts.

Martin Schaer, city personnel administrator, said the program is similar to the summer work program sponsored earlier this year by the city and township.

"MY INITIAL response is that it's a good program," he said. "I thought it worked out well last summer and am glad it's being continued."

Schaer said if the program is a success, city officials probably will consider extending the program.

"We'll see how it goes this time and look at the possibility of extending and expanding it," he said.

Although students may be employed in several areas, Schaer said, most will work with the public works department.

"I know the public works department can use them, but I'd also like to place some in clerical positions," he said.

Until Dec. 31 student workers will be paid $2.10 an hour for their services to the city. After that, their salary will increase to $2.20 an hour to conform with the new federal minimum-wage law for state and local government employees.

UNITED AIRLINES pilot, Fred Rogers is building a 1930-vintage model airplane from a kit containing several thousand parts. The wooden frame and enclosed motor eventually will be covered with a silky fabric, painted and marked with call letters.

Pilots intrigued by model airplane flight

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Some commercial airline pilots just can't get their fill of flying. So in their spare time they build and fly model airplanes.

Two of those pilots, Fred Rogers and Horace Cain, are among the 50 members of the Skylarks Radio Control Model Airplane Club of Wheeling who spend their leisure time exploring the mysteries of aerodynamics on a small scale. Club members are from all over the Northwest suburbs.

"You have to know and understand the concepts behind flying a plane to be able to control one of these models from the ground with a radio," said

Fred Rogers, the group's president and a DC-8 pilot for United Airlines.

And, it is for that reason members of the Skylarks Club take what they do seriously — like pros. These intricate, realistic models are not toys for older boys, they say.

FOR ABOUT 15 years the Skylarks have gathered weekly in a three-acre field in Mundelein to fly their Ford Tri-Motors, civilian planes of the 1930s, modern jets and traditional warplanes.

The planes are of all sizes and shapes. Each is made of thousands of carefully glued and wired pieces, Rogers said.

Rogers has been building and flying the models since he was a child. He enjoys it as a hobby but is not interested in the growing competitive aspect of "the sport."

"More people are getting involved in it," said Horace Cain, Buffalo Grove, who also is a pilot for United.

"Most members of our group belong to the Academy of Model Aeronautics Assn., which is the national group. The association's membership has increased from 10,000 to about 60,000 in 10 years. Our local group's membership growth rate has been about the

Talks planned in January

Historical group, parks in merger?

Wheeling Park District officials will meet with representatives of the Wheeling Historical Society in January to discuss a merger of the two groups.

The park board agreed to the meeting after Park Supt. David Phillips suggested they pursue "affiliation." Board member Robert Ross said park officials want to "hammer out" any differences with the society before asking the park district attorney to draft an agreement.

Representatives of the historical society last month asked the park board to consider affiliation because of the advantages of such a move.

THE HISTORICAL society said advantages of affiliation include:

- The society could better preserve artifacts of the community with the park district staff.
- The park district could provide leadership and coordination of activities through cooperative planning.
- The park district could assist in membership promotion for the society.
- The park district could assist in coordination of activities.
- The park district could levy a museum tax for maintenance and improvements.

Society officials said the taxlevying potential is the most attractive aspect of the proposal. The society currently raises money to support itself through events such as the annual Beer and Brat festival and through donations.

State statutes allow park districts to levy a nonreferendum museum tax of .015 cents per $100 assessed valuation. If affiliation takes place the park district could levy the tax in September 1976 and have funds available after June 1977.

Park board members have said they are concerned over the society's request that it be allowed to spend funds on its own. Commissioners said if the park district is levying a tax, it should have the authority to decide how and when funds can be spent.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 6.

Fire-limits law on agenda tonight

Elimination of the Wheeling fire-limits ordinance prohibiting the construction of frame buildings in commercially-zoned areas will be discussed tonight by the Wheeling Village Board.

Several village trustees said last week they favored elimination of fire-limits after Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said the ordinance is outdated and could hurt the village's fire rating.

Koeppen said the village adopted the fire-limits in the 1940s when few building materials were fire resistant. He said village building code requirements make the ordinance obsolete.

Fire ratings are based on the water supply system, fire department, fire service communications and fire prevention codes, Koeppen said, adding that the fire limits could be a detriment since they are not being enforced in many areas.

VILLAGE MGR. George Passolt said the village has lost industry and business because of the fire limits. He said developers have presented building plans which meet all requirements but "according to our codes they couldn't be built that way."

Trustees William Hein, Otis Hedlund, Charles Kerr and John Cole last week said they are in favor of eliminating the fire limits.

Cole said the board should take "a good long look" at zoning regulations to make sure fire preventive measures are present before "doing away" with the limits.

Hein said fire limits should be eliminated but that the village should require smoke and heat detectors in any wood-frame commercial building too small for a sprinkler system.

In other action, the board is expected to act on a recommendation that the village apply for a federal grant for sewer rehabilitation. Assistant Village Mgr. Thomas Marcus said village officials would apply for $133,425 in funds from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for study of the sewer system.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. today at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Pace of recession recovery slows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pace of recovery from the recession is slowing.

Economists expected it to slow — it could not long sustain its breakneck speed of the early autumn — but there are signs that something more serious than mere moderation has set in.

This is the picture which emerges from a mixed set of economic statistics from recent weeks. Unemployment fell from 8.5 to 8.3 per cent, a sharp drop, and down significantly from the recession's peak of 9.2 per cent in May. But total employment, a more significant indication of the nation's economic health, also declined.

On the inflation front, another mixed picture: the cost of living, reflecting consumer prices, rose when last measured, in October, at a sharp rate. But wholesale prices, in November, recorded a zero change — mainly because volatile food prices declined enough to offset increases in industrial prices.

The index of economic indicators, which is intended to foretell the economy's future path, declined in October, for the second straight month.

Here is a summary of the latest figures:

- UNEMPLOYMENT: Unemployment fell 0.3 per cent to 8.3 per cent in November — the sharpest decline in six months — because of recalls among laid off family men and a big decline in job seekers. But there was also a slight decline in total employment.

- INFLATION: The cost of living (Continued on Page 3)

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Santas are a dime a dozen around the Northwest suburbs this time of year, but Jeanette Gscheidle is one of a kind.

The Palatine mother of four makes her national debut as the merry "gentleman" from the North this month on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show."

Mrs. Gscheidle called The Herald offices late Sunday to say she will appear on Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow Show" at midnight tonight.

But Santa is no newcomer to suburbanites who now are accustomed to seeing a woman in the Santa suit cruising down the highway. They simply wave and remark that it must be that time of year again.

Every year Mrs. Gscheidle dons a red suit and white beard to make the rounds at local public schools, schools for the handicapped and homes for the elderly. She never comes empty handed, thanks to donations from individuals and local stores.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE chuckles that she is particularly suited for the role since she weighs about 300 pounds.

"I'm built for it," she said with a laugh.

Her Totie Fields sense of humor probably contributes most to this Santa's genuine jolliness.

A friend thought Santa would be the perfect guest on Carson's late night talk show so she sent photos and newspaper clippings describing Santa's exploits in the Northwest suburbs. Much to Mrs. Gscheidle's surprise, she received a phone call from the network last month asking if she would be available for an appearance.

She'll make the all-expense paid trip to California soon and hopes the show will be aired sometime during Christmas week although the exact date has not been set. She plans to use the money she will be paid to cover the cost of a new $300 Santa suit, a copy of the one worn by Bing Crosby in the movie "White Christmas."

Mrs. Gscheidle is a bit nervous about being broadcast nationwide before millions of viewers. "I want to get there, get it over with and get back," she said.

SHE ADMITS, with an impish grin, that she has done "a few nutty things" while in disguise. Last year she walked into the Palatine Post Office and asked for her mail. After some bewildered stammerings, the postal clerk finally handed over a sack full of letters addressed to Santa Claus.

"Who's going to say no to a giant in a Santa Claus suit?" Mrs. Gscheidle said.

The post office now has agreed to keep her mail, and Mrs. Gscheidle tries to answer the children's letters.

Then there was the time when Santa and her son stopped at the local Jack-In-The-Box for a hamburger. She drove up to the outside speaker and ordered, "ho hoing into the microphone." The waitress appreciated the joke but was startled when Santa drove up in costume to claim the meal. Mrs. Gscheidle still remembers the looks on the faces of the cooks, waitresses and customers who ran to the window for a peek.

Starting Wednesday, Mrs. Gscheidle begins her annual whirlwind tour visiting 300 to 400 children each day. Each child receives a bag of goodies including candy and small toys.

When she visits homes for the elderly, she gives bags containing stationery, pens, calendars, combs and toiletries.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE has had many generous donations of gifts from individuals and local businesses. Bob's Union 76, her local service station, gave her $50 in gasoline "for the sled." When Santa was at the beauty shop this week a customer overheard her talking about her program and left a check and a note of good wishes for her at the front counter.

"If everybody helps it all adds up," said Mrs. Gscheidle. That's what Christmas is all about — the joy of giving unselfishly, she said.

HORRACE CAIN is owner of the Aero-Sports Hobby Center, Mount Prospect, same," Cain said. MEMBERS INVEST from $150 to $600 in a model plane, covering the building materials, parts and radio equipment. It takes anywhere from several months to a year to construct a model plane, Rogers said.

"These planes can do anything that a real airplane can do. You just have to know how to manipulate it and anticipate the conditions once the plane is in the air," he said. "That's probably more difficult to do than building it."

Many of Roger's prize models are suspended by string from the ceiling of the Aero-Sports Hobby Center, 970 Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect. Cain, owner of the shop, opened the store five years ago because "there weren't really any places in the area where we could buy all the materials we need for the models," he said.

HIS SHOP features not only airplane, but boat, rocket and automobile model kits.

Cain used to enter his planes in local and national meets, but those days are over. The trophies he has won sit on mantels in his home, though his love for model airplanes continues.

Cain and other experienced fliers spend much of their time instructing new members of the group who go through about 20 radio control flights "before they really know what they are doing," he said.

Members of the organization also present demonstrations and ask professional aviators to speak at their meetings on the first Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at Wheeling High School.

"IT'S A whole different thing when you're trying to achieve a smooth landing in a jet and when you are trying to do the same thing with a model plane. Both are challenging, and I enjoy both in a different way," Rogers said.

The planes are maneuvered gracefully to complete the same rolls, loops, spins and figure-eights that awe the audiences of life-size airplane stunt pilots.

"It's an interesting and a technical hobby. Something that allows for craftsmanship as well as adventure. It's really something a lot of us enjoy because we can appreciate what it takes to fly a real plane," he said.

Many selected as state scholars

A number of Wheeling high school students are among the 14,338 students in Illinois who have been selected by the State Scholarship Commission as Illinois State Scholars in the 1976-77 competition.

Scholars were chosen from 47,508 students who entered the competition by taking the spring American College Testing program (ACT).

Rayner will present a number of acts including Hal Aviland and his Educated Dog and Pony Circus, a precision balancing act on unsupported ladders by Johnny Laddie and Family and Johnny Zoppe's Rhesus Monkeys.

Showtime is 1 p.m. and doors to the auditorium open at noon. Tickets sold at the high school for $2 per child. Adults are admitted free when accompanied by children.

Proceeds from the show will go to Wheeling Rotary Club activities, including music scholarships for children and the club's foreign exchange program.

Refugee suffers third sorrow, baby dies here

by STIRLING MORITA

Mrs. Chanh Nguyen, a Vietnamese refugee living in Mount Prospect, has experienced many sorrows in her life.

Her husband died earlier this year while serving in the South Vietnamese navy. She learned about two weeks ago her brother, from whom she had been separated, had died in Vietnam.

Then, Saturday night, her 3-month-old baby Frederick died, apparently the victim of crib death.

"She has had so many blows," said Mrs. Frederick Thulin, at whose house Mrs. Nguyen is staying. "She named him after my husband. We were the godparents of the baby."

POLICE SAID the baby was placed in his crib about 6 p.m. Mrs. Thulin and Mrs. Nguyen were washing the dinner dishes. The baby had been crying, and when he stopped they thought he had fallen asleep, police were told.

Mrs. Thulin entered the room, saw that the baby looked ill and attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. "He was a big healthy baby," Mrs. Thulin said.

The paramedics attempted to revive him. "The rescue squad was excellent," she said.

The baby was pronounced dead at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Thulin said the family should learn the cause of death soon.

Mrs. Nguyen gave birth to Frederick about four days after she was placed with the Thulins Sept. 12, Mrs. Thulin said.

MRS. NGUYEN and her two other children live with the Thulins. "We're very fond of them. They're like a part of the family," Mrs. Thulin said.

The Vietnamese mother and her three children were placed with the Thulins by Catholic Charities, which has sponsored many refugee families.

Mrs. Nguyen was living near Da Nang when her husband was killed. The family left South Vietnam because they were Catholic and feared repercussions when the North Vietnamese took over their country, Mrs. Thulin said.

Bicentennial unit seeks state grants

The Prospect Heights Bicentennial Commission has applied for three state grants totaling $7,400 to finance entertainment, art and recreation projects next year.

Lynn Klotz, commission chairman, said the grants require 50 per cent matching funds from the community. Action on the applications will be taken by the end of the year. The group is seeking donations.

The grant applications were the first action of the newly formed commission, established by a resolution which the Prospect Heights Park Board approved two weeks ago. The park board was designated as the sponsoring governmental agency for the commission in lieu of a village board or a city council, Mrs. Klotz said.

THE COMMISSION has applied for a $1,200 performing arts grant and a $1,200 art grant and a $5,000 recreation equipment grant.

The park board and the commission have applied jointly for the recreation grant which calls for the purchase of equipment for the new recreation center under construction at Elm Street at Camp McDonald Road. The equipment would be purchased as a Bicentennial gift to the community, she said.

The art grant, called Sundance '76, would be used to commission a local artist to paint a Bicentennial painting or do a series of lithographs for a traveling Bicentennial exhibit for the Prospect Heights community. Mrs. Klotz said.

The performing arts grant would be used to pay for entertainment that would be provided during a Bicentennial weekend celebration, June 4 to 6, 1976, she said.

The preliminary plans for the weekend celebration call for a torchlight parade featuring area bands and floats constructed by civic organizations. The parade will begin at Lions Park and end at Hersey High School where a Marine Corps unit from the Glenview Naval Air Base will present uniforms and flags of the past, Mrs. Klotz said.

TV, radio gear taken in two burglaries

Mount Prospect police are investigating two burglaries that occurred during the weekend including one in which a $350 color television set was stolen from the Roger Martin home, 1801 Cottonwood Ln.

Burglars entered the home sometime between 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 1:30 a.m. Sunday by breaking a window, police said.

In the other burglary, about $370 worth of radio equipment was reported stolen Friday from a motorhome belonging to Edward Bakos, 1903 E. Camp McDonald Rd.

Police said burglars pried open a window to the vehicle and stole two citizen-band radios, a weather receiver and a meter.

UNITED AIRLINES pilot, Fred Rogers is building a 1930-vintage model airplane from a kit containing several thousand parts. The wooden frame and enclosed motor eventually will be covered with a silky fabric, painted and marked with call letters.

Pilots intrigued by model airplane flight

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Some commercial airline pilots just can't get their fill of flying. So in their spare time they build and fly model airplanes.

Two of those pilots, Fred Rogers and Horace Cain, are among the 50 members of the Skylarks Radio Control Model Airplane Club of Wheeling who spend their leisure time exploring the mysteries of aerodynamics on a small scale. Club members are from all over the Northwest suburbs.

"You have to know and understand the concepts behind flying a plane to be able to control one of these models from the ground with a radio," said

Fred Rogers, the group's president and a DC-8 pilot for United Airlines.

And, it is for that reason members of the Skylarks Club take what they do seriously — like pros. These intricate, realistic models are not toys for older boys, they say.

FOR ABOUT 15 years the Skylarks have gathered weekly in a three-acre field in Mundelein to fly their Ford Tri-Motors, civilian planes of the 1930s, modern jets and traditional warplanes.

The planes are of all sizes and shapes. Each is made of thousands of carefully glued and wired pieces, Rogers said.

Rogers has been building and flying the models since he was a child. He enjoys it as a hobby but is not interested in the growing competitive aspect of "the sport."

"More people are getting involved in it," said Horace Cain, Buffalo Grove, who also is a pilot for United.

"Most members of our group belong to the Academy of Model Aeronautics Assn., which is the national group. The association's membership has increased from 10,000 to about 60,000 in 10 years. Our local group's membership growth rate has been about the

Two-year deal sought

Arrowhead builders reject extension

Chesterfield Development Corp., planners of the proposed Arrowhead townhouse project in Buffalo Grove, has rejected a one-year extension on a preannexation agreement. The extension was approved by village trustees two weeks ago.

Fred G. Hillman, executive vice president for Chesterfield, said he would not agree to the one-year extension which requires three modifications for the housing project.

The matter will be discussed at the village board meeting today at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

HILLMAN, IN A letter to Village Pres. Edward A. Fabish and the board, said there were two ways to resolve the matter. He said village officials should choose between letting the preannexation agreement expire as it would have Nov. 24 or extending it for two years with modifications.

The modifications include a relocation of a street to conform with Cook County requirements, change of north and south building boundaries to provide 25-foot setbacks and payment of engineering fees under current rates.

The board extended the agreement Nov. 24, the day it was to expire, and dropped plans for a lawsuit to dis-annex the property from the village as originally planned.

Trustees tonight also will examine a six-month budget report by Finance Director Richard W. Glueckert. The report covers all spending and revenues from May 1 to Oct. 31.

In the report, Glueckert said the early receipt of property taxes has allowed the village to pay its bills, avoiding the sale of tax anticipation warrants.

THE FINANCIAL situation in the village has improved, but the village should continue to watch spending carefully, he wrote in the report.

In a related matter, Glueckert will recommend that the board approved the distribution of various village accounts in the Bank of Buffalo Grove and the Buffalo Grove National Bank.

The village's general, revenue-sharing and civil defense funds, plus the motor fuel tax revenues, are recommended to be placed in the Bank of Buffalo Grove and the golf course and water funds placed at the Buffalo Grove National Bank.

Trustees also will discuss a proposal by the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. to use the lakes on the Buffalo Grove Golf Course for water rescue training.

Hatten to run for court clerk post

Paul R. Hatten, Lake County deputy circuit clerk, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Circuit Court clerk.

A precinct committeeman in Zion for 27 years, Hatten has served as a justice of the peace for 12 years, police magistrate for eight years and magistrate of the Circuit Court for two years.

Hatten is a past commander of American Legion Post 865 in Zion; past president of the Zion Exchange Club; past president of the Zion Chamber of Commerce; and committee chairman of Boy Scout Troop 62. He is 3rd District chairman of the Lake County Republican Central Committee, a member of the Chiefs of Police Assn. in Lake County and a Shriner in Knight Templar No. 12, Waukegan.

Circuit Clerk Stephanie Sulthin is not running for reelection.

Pace of recession recovery slows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pace of recovery from the recession is slowing.

Economists expected it to slow — it could not long sustain its breakneck speed of the early autumn — but there are signs that something more serious than mere moderation has set in.

This is the picture which emerges from a mixed set of economic statistics from recent weeks. Unemployment fell from 8.6 to 8.3 per cent, a sharp drop, and down significantly from the recession's peak of 9.2 per cent in May. But total employment, a more significant indication of the nation's economic health, also declined.

On the inflation front, another mixed picture: the cost of living, reflecting consumer prices, rose when last measured, in October, at a sharp rate. But wholesale prices, in November, recorded a zero change — mainly because volatile food prices declined enough to offset increases in industrial prices.

The index of economic indicators, which is intended to foretell the economy's future path, declined in October, for the second straight month.

Here is a summary of the latest figures:

• UNEMPLOYMENT: Unemployment fell 0.3 per cent to 8.3 per cent in November — the sharpest decline in six months — because of recalls among laid off family men and a big decline in job seekers. But there was also a slight decline in total employment.

• INFLATION: The cost of living (Continued on Page 3)

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Santas are a dime a dozen around the Northwest suburbs this time of year, but Jeanette Gscheidle is one of a kind.

The Palatine mother of four makes her national debut as the merry "gentleman" from the North this month on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show."

Mrs. Gscheidle called The Herald offices late Sunday to say she will appear on Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow Show" at midnight tonight.

But Santa is no newcomer to suburbanites who now are accustomed to seeing a woman in the Santa suit cruising down the highway. They simply wave and remark that it must be that time of year again.

Every year Mrs. Gscheidle dons a red suit and white beard to make the rounds at local public schools, schools for the handicapped and homes for the elderly. She never comes empty handed, thanks to donations from individuals and local stores.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE chuckles that she is particularly suited for the role since she weighs about 300 pounds.

"I'm built for it," she said with a laugh.

Her Totie Fields sense of humor probably contributes most to this Santa's genuine jolliness.

A friend thought Santa would be the perfect guest on Carson's late night talk show so she sent photos and newspaper clippings describing Santa's exploits in the Northwest suburbs. Much to Mrs. Gscheidle's surprise, she received a phone call from the network last month asking if she would be available for an appearance.

She'll make the all-expense paid trip to California soon and hopes the show will be aired sometime during Christmas week although the exact date has not been set. She plans to use the money she will be paid to cover the cost of a new $300 Santa suit, a copy of the one worn by Bing Crosby in the movie "White Christmas."

Mrs. Gscheidle is a bit nervous about being broadcast nationwide before millions of viewers. "I want to get there, get it over with and get back," she said.

SHE ADMITS, with an impish grin, that she has done "a few nutty things" while in disguise. Last year she walked into the Palatine Post Office and asked for her mail. After some bewildered stammerings, the postal clerk finally handed over a sack full of letters addressed to Santa Claus.

"Who's going to say no to a giant in a Santa Claus suit?" Mrs. Gscheidle said.

The post office now has agreed to keep her mail, and Mrs. Gscheidle tries to answer the children's letters.

Then there was the time when Santa and her son stopped at the local Jack-In-The-Box for a hamburger. She drove up to the outside speaker and ordered, "ho hoing into the microphone." The waitress appreciated the joke but was startled when Santa drove up in costume to claim the meal. Mrs. Gscheidle still remembers the looks on the faces of the cooks, waitresses and customers who ran to the window for a peek.

Starting Wednesday, Mrs. Gscheidle begins her annual whirlwind tour visiting 300 to 400 children each day. Each child receives a bag of goodies including candy and small toys.

When she visits homes for the elderly, she gives bags containing stationery, pens, calendars, combs and toiletries.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE has had many generous donations of gifts from individuals and local businesses. Bob's, Union 76, her local service station, gave her $50 in gasoline "for the sled." When Santa was at the beauty shop this week a customer overheard her talking about her program and left a check and a note of good wishes for her at the front counter.

"If everybody helps it all adds up," said Mrs. Gscheidle. That's what Christmas is all about — the joy of giving unselfishly, she said.

HORACE CAIN is owner of the Aero-Sports Hobby Center, Mount Prospect, where many of the Skylark's model planes are displayed and suspended from the ceiling.

same," Cain said.

MEMBERS INVEST from $150 to $600 in a model plane, covering the building materials, parts and radio equipment. It takes anywhere from several months to a year to construct a model plane, Rogers said.

"These planes can do anything that a real airplane can do. You just have to know how to manipulate it and anticipate the conditions once the plane is in the air," he said. "That's probably more difficult to do than building it."

Many of Roger's prize models are suspended by string from the ceiling of the Aero-Sports Hobby Center, 970 Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect. Cain, owner of the shop, opened the store five years ago because "there weren't really any places in the area where we could buy all the materials we need for the models," he said.

HIS SHOP features not only airplane, but boat, rocket and automobile model kits.

Cain used to enter his planes in local and national meets, but those days are over. The trophies he has won sit on mantels in his home, though his love for model airplanes continues.

Cain and other experienced fliers spend much of their time instructing new members of the group who go through about 20 radio control flights "before they really know what they are doing," he said.

Members of the organization also present demonstrations and ask professional aviators to speak at their meetings on the first Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at Wheeling High School.

"It's a whole different thing when you're trying to achieve a smooth landing in a jet and when you are trying to do the same thing with a model plane. Both are challenging, and I enjoy both in a different way," Rogers said.

The planes are maneuvered gracefully to complete the same rolls, loops, spins and figure-eights that awe the audiences of life-size airplane stunt pilots.

"It's an interesting and a technical hobby. Something that allows for craftsmanship as well as adventure. It's really something a lot of us enjoy because we can appreciate what it takes to fly a real plane," he said.

Refugee suffers third sorrow, baby dies here

by STIRLING MORITA

Mrs. Chanh Nguyen, a Vietnamese refugee living in Mount Prospect, has experienced many sorrows in her life.

Her husband died earlier this year while serving in the South Vietnamese navy. She learned about two weeks ago her brother, from whom she had been separated, had died in Vietnam.

Then, Saturday night, her 3-month-old baby Frederick died, apparently the victim of crib death.

"She has had so many blows," said Mrs. Frederick Thulin, at whose house Mrs. Nguyen is staying. "She named him after my husband. We were the godparents of the baby."

POLICE SAID the baby was placed in his crib about 6 p.m. Mrs. Thulin and Mrs. Nguyen were washing the dinner dishes. The baby had been crying, and when he stopped they thought he had fallen asleep, police were told.

Mrs. Thulin entered the room, saw that the baby looked ill and attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. "He was a big healthy baby," Mrs. Thulin said.

The paramedics attempted to revive him. "The rescue squad was excellent," she said.

The baby was pronounced dead at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Thulin said the family should learn the cause of death soon.

Mrs. Nguyen gave birth to Frederick about four days after she was placed with the Thulins Sept. 12, Mrs. Thulin said.

MRS. NGUYEN and her two other children live with the Thulins. "We're very fond of them. They're like a part of the family," Mrs. Thulin said.

The Vietnamese mother and her three children were placed with the Thulins by Catholic Charities, which has sponsored many refugee families.

Historical unit, Wheeling parks in merger talks

Wheeling Park District officials will meet with representatives of the Wheeling Historical Society in January to discuss a merger of the two groups.

The park board agreed to the meeting after Park Supt. David Phillips suggested they pursue "affiliation." Board member Robert Ross said park officials want to "hammer out" any differences with the society before asking the park district attorney to draft an agreement.

Representatives of the historical society last month asked the park board to consider affiliation because of the advantages of such a move.

THE HISTORICAL society said advantages of affiliation include:

- The society could better preserve artifacts of the community with the park district staff.

- The park district could provide leadership and coordination of activities through cooperative planning.

- The park district could assist in membership promotion for the society.

- The park district could assist in coordination of activities.

- The park district could levy a museum tax for maintenance and improvements.

Society officials said the taxlevying potential is the most attractive aspect of the proposal. The society currently raises money to support itself through events such as the annual Beer and Brat festival and through donations.

State statutes allow park districts to levy a nonreferendum museum tax of 0.15 cents per $100 assessed valuation. If affiliation takes place the park district could levy the tax in September 1976 and have funds available after June 1977.

Park board members have said they are concerned over the society's request that it be allowed to spend funds on its own. Commissioners said if the park district is levying a tax, it should have the authority to decide how and when funds can be spent.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 6.

Lawrence A. Dennis of Mundelein is a candidate for the office of Lake County Recorder of Deeds in the Democratic primary March 18.

Dennis said that his experience in the real estate profession qualifies him for the office.

After leaving the Navy in 1973, Dennis worked for Gallery of Homes by Town and Country and currently works for Century 21, Tegg Realty, Half Day.

"Working in a small company gave me experience in all phases of real estate transactions," Dennis said.

Dennis served in the Navy for three years, including 10 months on a hospital ship in Vietnam. He was a communications officer and later worked in public relations and recruiting for the Navy.

A graduate of Marquette University, Dennis is a member of the Mundelein Jaycees.

Ray Rayner show at Wheeling high

Ray Rayner and his Christmas Show will take the stage at Wheeling High School's auditorium Dec. 13 in a performance sponsored by the Wheeling Rotary Club.

Rayner will present a number of acts including Hal Aviland and his Educated Dog and Pony Circus, a precision balancing act on unsupported ladders by Johnny Laddie and Family and Johnny Zoppe's Rhesus Monkeys.

Showtime is 1 p.m. and doors to the auditorium open at noon. Tickets sold at the high school for $2 per child. Adults are admitted free when accompanied by children.

Proceeds from the show will go to Wheeling Rotary Club activities, including music scholarships for children and the club's foreign exchange program.

Christmas spirit at the race track

To the 175 youngsters from Maryville Academy, the person, running around with a white beard and the red suit, should have been Ernie Poulos.

Instead, Santa Claus was portrayed by Jeanette Gscheidle (see story below). Poulos was too busy Sunday rushing around at the Arlington Park Race Track, making sure the residents of the Des Plaines children's home had a good time at his Christmas party.

The modest Poulos said, "It does my heart good to see these kids here."

The real Santa — Ernie Poulos.

Smothered in feathers and affection.

"He looks real."

Police shoot man in robbery attempt

A robbery suspect was seriously wounded, and his two accomplices arrested, when Elk Grove Village police surprised the trio during an attempted armed robbery Saturday at Yashica Inc., 120 King St., police reported.

Detectives were watching the plant Saturday morning after learning from an informant that there would be an armed robbery at the plant, Lt. William Kohnke said. The alleged robber was shot in the abdomen when he pointed a .32-caliber pistol at a detective, Kohnke reported.

Reported in serious condition Sunday in the intensive-care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, was Benny Davis, no age available, 1636 Melrose Ave., Chicago. A hospital spokesman said Davis suffered gunshot wounds to the abdomen and a hand. Davis underwent surgery at the hospital Saturday.

TAKEN INTO custody were Donald Woods, 25, of 4687 S. Eberly, and Harold Harlan, 47, of 9523 W. Lexington, both of Brookfield. They were charged with armed robbery and unlawful use of weapons.

Davis was charged with attempted murder and armed robbery.

Police said they started a stake out of the factory about 6 a.m. and that about 8:50 a.m. three masked gunmen entered the plant with weapons drawn.

They saw the detectives, and two of them ran into the factory, Kohnke said. A detective subdued Davis, and police yelled twice for the other bandits to "freeze," Kohnke said.

DAVIS BROKE away from the detective, brandished his pistol and aimed it at the detective, Kohnke said. The detective then shot Davis, authorities said. Kohnke said he would not identify the detective, but added Davis' weapon was loaded.

The other two gunmen hid behind a desk in the factory, and police ordered them to surrender, Kohnke said. The men then surrendered without incident, he said.

Woods and Harlan were being held by police pending a bond hearing today.

New firehouse topic of meeting

The construction of a new fire station and partial closing of two existing stations will be discussed tonight by the Elk Grove Village Board.

The fourth fire station is planned for the southwest corner of Meacham Road and Biesterfeld Road after it is extended. The station is expected to cost $338,000 and will be financed with funds remaining from a 1969 bond issue, federal revenue-sharing funds and general tax receipts.

The station would serve the area west of Ill. Rte. 53 which now has more than 1,100 houses. More growth is expected for the area in the next few years. Currently the area is serviced from the 101 Biesterfeld Rd. station.

STAFFING OF the new station would be possible without hiring additional firemen if two existing stations are closed for half a day.

Possible changes in fire station service areas also will be discussed tonight as part of the board's committee-of-whole meeting on future fire service within the village. The meeting is at 7 p.m. at the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave.

There may be some discussion of the paramedic mobile intensive-care portion of the fire service. New state requirements call for a minimum of two paramedics on each emergency ambulance run. Elk Grove Village currently does not have enough certified paramedics to meet that requirement on a 24-hour-a-day basis.

Fire department officials will make a presentation at tonight's meeting.

Pace of recession recovery slows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pace of recovery from the recession is slowing.

Economists expected it to slow — it could not long sustain its breakneck speed of the early autumn — but there are signs that something more serious than mere moderation has set in.

This is the picture which emerges from a mixed set of economic statistics from recent weeks. Unemployment fell from 8.6 to 8.3 per cent, a sharp drop, and down significantly from the recession's peak of 9.2 per cent in May. But total employment, a more significant indication of the nation's economic health, also declined.

On the inflation front, another mixed picture: the cost of living, reflecting consumer prices, rose when last measured, in October, at a sharp rate. But wholesale prices, in November, recorded a zero change — mainly because volatile food prices declined enough to offset increases in industrial prices.

The index of economic indicators, which is intended to foretell the economy's future path, declined in October, for the second straight month.

Here is a summary of the latest figures:

• UNEMPLOYMENT: Unemployment fell 0.3 per cent to 8.3 per cent in November — the sharpest decline in six months — because of recalls among laid off family men and a big decline in job seekers. But there was also a slight decline in total employment.

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Santas are a dime a dozen around the Northwest suburbs this time of year, but Jeanette Gscheidle is one of a kind.

The Palatine mother of four makes her national debut as the merry "gentleman" from the North this month on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show."

Mrs. Gscheidle called The Herald offices late Sunday to say she will appear on Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow Show" at midnight tonight.

But Santa is no newcomer to suburbanites who now are accustomed to seeing a woman in the Santa suit cruising down the highway. They simply wave and remark that it must be that time of year again.

Every year Mrs. Gscheidle dons a red suit and white beard to make the rounds at local public schools, schools for the handicapped and homes for the elderly. She never comes empty handed, thanks to donations from individuals and local stores.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE chuckles that she is particularly suited for the role since she weighs about 300 pounds.

"I'm built for it," she said with a laugh.

Her Totie Fields sense of humor probably contributes most to this Santa's genuine jolliness.

A friend thought Santa would be the perfect guest on Carson's late night talk show so she sent photos and newspaper clippings describing Santa's exploits in the Northwest suburbs. Much to Mrs. Gscheidle's surprise, she received a phone call from the network last month asking if she would be available for an appearance.

She'll make the all-expense paid trip to California soon and hopes the show will be aired sometime during Christmas week although the exact date has not been set. She plans to use the money she will be paid to cover the cost of a new $300 Santa suit, a copy of the one worn by Bing Crosby in the movie "White Christmas."

Mrs. Gscheidle is a bit nervous about being broadcast nationwide before millions of viewers. "I want to get there, get it over with and get back," she said.

SHE ADMITS, with an impish grin, that she has done "a few nutty things" while in disguise. Last year she walked into the Palatine Post Office and asked for her mail. After some bewildered stammerings, the postal clerk finally handed over a sack full of letters addressed to Santa Claus.

"Who's going to say no to a giant in a Santa Claus suit?" Mrs. Gscheidle said.

The post office now has agreed to keep her mail, and Mrs. Gscheidle tries to answer the children's letters.

Then there was the time when Santa and her son stopped at the local Jack-In-The-Box for a hamburger. She drove up to the outside speaker and ordered, "ho hoing into the microphone." The waitress appreciated the joke but was startled when Santa drove up in costume to claim the meal. Mrs. Gscheidle still remembers the looks on the faces of the cooks, waitresses and customers who ran to the window for a peek.

Starting Wednesday, Mrs. Gscheidle begins her annual whirlwind tour visiting 300 to 400 children each day. Each child receives a bag of goodies including candy and small toys.

When she visits homes for the elderly, she gives bags containing stationery, pens, calendars, combs and toiletries.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE has had many generous donations of gifts from individuals and local businesses. Bob's Union, 76, her local service station, gave her $50 in gasoline "for the sled." When Santa was at the beauty shop this week a customer overheard her talking about her program and left a check and a note of good wishes for her at the front counter.

"If everybody helps it all adds up," said Mrs. Gscheidle. That's what Christmas is all about — the joy of giving unselfishly, she said.

Persons who wish to reach Santa can call her on her special Santa line, 981-4278, or simply write Santa, 620 W. Colfax Ave., Palatine, 60067.

The scholarship program covers most of the expenses for taking care of the students. For information contact Mrs. Marvin Claeys, 259-9528.

Jill Schoeffler and Lynn Scopa, Forest View High School students, took first and second place respectively for their entries in the Mount Prospect Park District's winter-spring brochure design contest.

First prize was a $25 U.S. Savings Bond. Second prize was a $25 certificate for any park district program.

Jill and Lynn submitted their designs through the school's art department.

Students from Arlington High School will be working with the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce to publish a community brochure. The students will do the research, prepare the copy and design the format for the project which should be completed in March.

2 firefighters to participate in paramedic study

Two paramedics from the Northwest suburbs will participate in a national study of mobile intensive-care systems.

The study, sponsored by the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians, was proposed by Fire Chief Allen W. Hulett of Elk Grove Village, a national registry board member. The purpose of the study is to help the registry set up national training guidelines for paramedics.

The Northwest area firemen, who will visit five other fire departments during the study, are Lt. Bernard E. Goss of Elk Grove Village, chosen by Hulett, and Firefighter Dale Collier of Palatine, chosen by Dr. Stanley M. Zydlo, head of the mobile intensive-care program in this area.

THE TWO MEN will leave Tuesday for Los Angeles, where they will spend three days studying the Los Angeles County paramedic system. Over the next five months, they also will make trips to Kansas City, Kan.; Columbus, Ohio; Seattle, Wash.; and Baltimore, Md.

A third paramedic, Firefighter Lynn Parks of Los Angeles County, will study five other departments, the first being Elk Grove Village, sometime in January.

"We will look at what the regional differences are in the operation of the paramedic programs," Goss said. "Our observations then will be used as a tool to improve the registry guidelines and possibly to suggest new training programs."

Goss said the fire departments chosen for the study were selected as they are nationally known as "progressive, energetic areas" for paramedic programs.

THE PARAMEDICS will be "very active observers," Goss said. They will go on emergency runs and observe procedures at hospitals, communication centers and in training.

Hulett, in his original proposal, said, "A comparison and evaluation of these (paramedic) experiences could prove a valuable tool . . . This exchange would facilitate the comparison of skills, techniques, equipment, instrumentation (and the like) by people actually functioning in the field."

The registry conducts a nationwide certification program for emergency medical technicians. Paramedic standards are set by states, and training is run by the area project director.

The registry estimates that a minimum of 50,640 paramedics will be needed to insure "national coverage" of the program.

Athletic association asks to join park district

The Elk Grove Village Athletic Assn. is seeking a merger with the Elk Grove Park District.

The athletic association sponsors a boys' football program, girls' softball and wrestling. It has been in operation as a volunteer group since 1971.

Jack A. Claes, director of parks and recreation, said the merger, if approved, would probably mean combining the athletic association and Elk Grove Boys' Football Inc. Boys' football, another volunteer organization, has been operated under park district sponsorship for two years.

CLAES LAST WEEK asked that the park board not begin its discussions on the merger until more staff meetings are held with both volunteer groups involved.

"At this stage, it is too premature to come before the board," Claes said. "Elk Grove Boys' Football Inc. has not been brought into this discussion."

'Let's do it' opens at Elk Grove High

"Let's Do It in the Barn" is the title of this year's student council variety show at Elk Grove High School.

The show is a take off on the Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney backyard musicals of the late 1940s in which the kids save Grandma's farm by staging a show in the barn.

Performances begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the school, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village. Tickets are $1.75 and seats can be reserved by calling 439-4800, ext. 37. Unreserved tickets will be sold at the door.

The show was written and is directed by senior Paul Denny. Gretchen Helbig created the musical arrangements and will conduct the orchestra. The sets, costumes, makeup and choreography were developed by the students.

"I anticipate some problems. I really don't believe it should come into a public meeting when our own parents' group (boys' football) hasn't been brought into it yet."

Claes said the problems he anticipates include whose officials would be used for games and other, similar procedural items.

PARK PRES. EDWARD R. Hauser said there has been "some friction between the two groups" in the past. He said there were "personality clashes" and different operating philosophies.

Claes said if a merger took place, the operation of the groups would be similar to that of the Elk Grove Boys' Football Inc. during the past two years. He said he hoped volunteers would still play a large part in both groups' organizational structures.

Park Comr. Lewis L. Smith said the park district would not be changing its programs "to match theirs."

Claes said he has set a Jan. 15 deadline for discussion of the merger between the two football groups. An initial meeting is scheduled for Thursday, with Hauser and Comr. James L. Cashman to represent the park board.

Christmas spirit at the race track

To the 175 youngsters from Maryville Academy, the person, running around with a white beard and the red suit, should have been Ernie Poulos.

Instead, Santa Claus was portrayed by Jeanette Gscheidle (see story below). Poulos was too busy Sunday rushing around at the Arlington Park Race Track, making sure the residents of the Des Plaines children's home had a good time at his Christmas party.

The modest Poulos said, "It does my heart good to see these kids here."

Costs exceed $28,000 bid

More funds asked for transit study

Schaumburg transportation committee officials will seek more federal money to pay for the increased cost of an area public transit study.

Committee chairman Fred Dietrich said he has been advised by Jack E. Leisch Associates, consultants who prepared the study, that their costs for the project exceed a $28,000 bid approved last year.

Dietrich said the consultants incurred an additional $7,500 in costs for furnishing 50 copies of the final report as well as for drafting a demonstration transportation system not outlined in the village's original proposal.

The firm was retained last year to survey the public transportation needs of the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates area.

TWO-THIRDS OF the basic cost of the study has been paid with a federal planning grant, supplemented by state funds. Hoffman Estates pledged $2,000 toward the cost for the project with remaining costs to be paid by Schaumburg.

Dietrich said extra charges totaled $12,616, explaining a Northwestern Illinois Planning Commission transportation representative has assured him two-thirds of the extra charges, or about $8,400, can be federally funded.

Although the final report has been completed, neither village board has taken action on the consultants' proposal to begin combined dial-a-ride and subscription bus service.

VILLAGE presidents Raymond Kessel, Schaumburg, and Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates, have both questioned costs of a proposed 6-to-12-month demonstration program expected to cost about $184,000.

Village officials agreed in October to hold future meetings to discuss public transportation systems though no meetings have yet been scheduled.

3-month-old child dies, 3rd sorrow for refugee

by STIRLING MORITA

Mrs. Khanh Nguyen, a Vietnamese refugee living in Mount Prospect, has experienced many sorrows in her life.

Her husband died earlier this year while serving in the South Vietnamese navy. She learned about two weeks ago her brother, from whom she had been separated, had died in Vietnam.

Then, Saturday night, her 3-month-old baby Frederick died, apparently the victim of crib death.

"She has had so many blows," said Mrs. Frederick Thulin, at whose house Mrs. Nguyen is staying. "She named him after my husband. We were the godparents of the baby."

POLICE SAID the baby was placed in his crib about 6 p.m. Mrs. Thulin and Mrs. Nguyen were washing the dinner dishes. The baby had been crying, and when he stopped they thought he had fallen asleep, police were told.

Mrs. Thulin entered the room, saw that the baby looked ill and attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. "He was a big healthy baby," Mrs. Thulin said.

The paramedics attempted to revive him. "The rescue squad was excellent," she said.

The baby was pronounced dead at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Thulin said the family should learn the cause of death soon.

Mrs. Nguyen gave birth to Frederick about four days after she was placed with the Thulins Sept. 12, Mrs. Thulin said.

MRS. NGUYEN and her two other children live with the Thulins. "We're very fond of them. They're like a part of the family," Mrs. Thulin said.

The Vietnamese mother and her three children were placed with the Thulins by Catholic Charities, which has sponsored many refugee families.

Mrs. Nguyen was living near Da Nang when her husband was killed. The family left South Vietnam because they were Catholic and feared repercussions when the North Vietnamese took over their country, Mrs. Thulin said.

Pace of recession recovery slows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pace of recovery from the recession is slowing.

Economists expected it to slow — it could not long sustain its breakneck speed of the early autumn — but there are signs that something more serious than mere moderation has set in.

This is the picture which emerges from a mixed set of economic statistics from recent weeks. Unemployment fell from 8.6 to 8.3 per cent, a sharp drop, and down significantly from the recession's peak of 9.2 per cent in May. But total employment, a more significant indication of the nation's economic health, also declined.

On the inflation front, another mixed picture: the cost of living, reflecting consumer prices, rose when last measured, in October, at a sharp rate. But wholesale prices, in November, recorded a zero change — mainly because volatile food prices declined enough to offset increases in industrial prices.

The index of economic indicators, which is intended to foretell the economy's future path, declined in October, for the second straight month.

Here is a summary of the latest figures:

• UNEMPLOYMENT: Unemployment fell 0.3 per cent to 8.3 per cent in November — the sharpest decline in six months — because of recalls among laid off family men and a big decline in job seekers. But there was also a slight decline in total employment.

• INFLATION: The cost of living (Continued on Page 3)

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Santas are a dime a dozen around the Northwest suburbs this time of year, but Jeanette Gscheidle is one of a kind.

The Palatine mother of four makes her national debut as the merry "gentleman" from the North this month on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show."

Mrs. Gscheidle called The Herald offices late Sunday to say she will appear on Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow Show" at midnight tonight.

But Santa is no newcomer to suburbanites who now are accustomed to seeing a woman in the Santa suit cruising down the highway. They simply wave and remark that it must be that time of year again.

Every year Mrs. Gscheidle dons a red suit and white beard to make the rounds at local public schools, schools for the handicapped and homes for the elderly. She never comes empty handed, thanks to donations from individuals and local stores.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE chuckles that she is particularly suited for the role since she weighs about 300 pounds.

"I'm built for it," she said with a laugh.

Her Totie Fields sense of humor probably contributes most to this Santa's genuine jolliness.

A friend thought Santa would be the perfect guest on Carson's late night talk show so she sent photos and newspaper clippings describing Santa's exploits in the Northwest suburbs. Much to Mrs. Gscheidle's surprise, she received a phone call from the network last month asking if she would be available for an appearance.

She'll make the all-expense paid trip to California soon and hopes the show will be aired sometime during Christmas week although the exact date has not been set. She plans to use the money she will be paid to cover the cost of a new $300 Santa suit, a copy of the one worn by Bing Crosby in the movie "White Christmas."

Mrs. Gscheidle is a bit nervous about being broadcast nationwide before millions of viewers. "I want to get there, get it over with and get back," she said.

SHE ADMITS, with an impish grin, that she has done "a few nutty things" while in disguise. Last year she walked into the Palatine Post Office and asked for her mail. After some bewildered stammerings, the postal clerk finally handed over a sack full of letters addressed to Santa Claus.

"Who's going to say no to a giant in a Santa Claus suit?" Mrs. Gscheidle said.

The post office now has agreed to keep her mail, and Mrs. Gscheidle tries to answer the children's letters.

Then there was the time when Santa and her son stopped at the local Jack-In-The-Box for a hamburger. She drove up to the outside speaker and ordered, "ho hoing into the microphone." The waitress appreciated the joke but was startled when Santa drove up in costume to claim the meal. Mrs. Gscheidle still remembers the looks on the faces of the cooks, waitresses and customers who ran to the window for a peek.

Starting Wednesday, Mrs. Gscheidle begins her annual whirlwind tour visiting 300 to 400 children each day. Each child receives a bag of goodies including candy and small toys.

When she visits homes for the elderly, she gives bags containing stationery, pens, calendars, combs and toiletries.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE has had many generous donations of gifts from individuals and local businesses. Bob's Union 76, her local service station, gave her $50 in gasoline "for the sled." When Santa was at the beauty shop this week a customer overheard her talking about her program and left a check and a note of good wishes for her at the front counter.

"If everybody helps it all adds up," said Mrs. Gscheidle. That's what Christmas is all about — the joy of giving unselfishly, she said.

Persons who wish to reach Santa can call her on her special Santa line, 991-4278, or simply write Santa, 620 W. Colfax Ave., Palatine, 60067.

Christmas spirit at the race track

To the 175 youngsters from Maryville Academy, the person, running around with a white beard and the red suit, should have been Ernie Poulos.

Instead, Santa Claus was portrayed by Jeanette Gscheidle (see story below). Poulos was too busy Sunday rushing around at the Arlington Park Race Track, making sure the residents of the Des Plaines children's home had a good time at his Christmas party.

The modest Poulos said, "It does my heart good to see these kids here."

The real Santa — Ernie Poulos.

Smothered in feathers and affection.

"He looks real."

Trouble getting horses

Dates delay to hurt Arlington track?

If delays in granting racing dates extend past Jan. 17, Arlington Park Race Track may have "serious problems" in securing horses for the upcoming season, a race track official said Sunday.

"There could be an awful lot of trouble," said the official, who asked to remain anonymous. "Getting horses takes a long time."

The Illinois Racing Board will meet Jan. 17. Racing dates will be awarded if the Illinois General Assembly assures the board that action will be taken on $2.1 million funding to operate the board for the year.

THE BOARD released harness racing dates through January for Aurora Downs, Balmoral Park and downstate Cahokia Downs.

Dates are supposed to be set by Dec. 1 for the following year. But the board recessed its dates hearings Nov. 22 and permitted the deadline to pass.

Board members have said scheduling is impossible until operational funds are granted. The General Assembly adjourned Nov. 21 without taking action on the board's request and is slated to resume Jan. 14.

Arlington Park officials have requested a 150-day thoroughbred racing session from May 3 to Oct. 23. The official said, "This could delay us in our missionary work for getting horses."

He said the upcoming season is an important one for Illinois race tracks. "This will be a whole new era for racing in Illinois."

THE OFFICIAL said under a new state law which goes into effect Jan. 1, there will be more money available for race purses and capital improvements. He estimated there may be as much as $1.5 million extra to put toward purses.

The larger purses would draw the "good" horses, he said.

He added it was important to start selling the idea of bigger purses early.

Arlington law for game centers?

The electronic games center controversy, which has raged in Rolling Meadows since July, may never get a chance to surface in Arlington Heights.

The Arlington Heights Village Board legal committee meets today at 8 p.m. to discuss controls on businesses with pinball and other coin-operated entertainment devices. Assistant Village Atty. Ernest R. Blomquist expects several meetings will be needed before an ordinance is drafted, limiting the number of coin-operated machines at businesses in the village.

"I want us to be ahead of amusement center problems," Hanson said. "I don't want Arlington Heights to get these exclusive businesses — like arcades that have nothing but coin-operated machines."

HANSON SAID that there have not been any requests to open game centers in Arlington Heights but that "they're springing up all around us."

"I am not aware of an overt problem existing in Arlington Heights," Blomquist said. "But this is a legal question which has to be answered sooner or later."

It is no longer possible to legislate against loitering — one major complaint about the game centers — because of changes in curfew legislation, Blomquist said.

The police department is checking with other villages about conduct problems that occur at such centers, Blomquist said.

THE QUESTION in Rolling Meadows is more immediate, where there is a proposal from Mr. and Mrs. William Abrahams to open a coin-operated amusement center in the Coachlight shopping area near Kirchoff Road and Owl Drive. The center would feature electronic pinball and air hockey games.

Since the proposal was submitted in (Continued on Page 5)

by STIRLING MORITA

Mrs. Chanh Nguyen, a Vietnamese refugee living in Mount Prospect, has experienced many sorrows in her life.

Her husband died earlier this year while serving in the South Vietnamese navy. She learned about two weeks ago her brother, from whom she had been separated, had died in Vietnam.

Then, Saturday night, her 3-month-old baby Frederick died, apparently the victim of crib death.

"She has had so many blows," said Mrs. Frederick Thulin, at whose house Mrs. Nguyen is staying. "She named him after my husband. We were the godparents of the baby."

POLICE SAID the baby was placed in his crib about 6 p.m. Mrs. Thulin and Mrs. Nguyen were washing the dinner dishes. The baby had been crying, and when he stopped they thought he had fallen asleep, police were told.

Mrs. Thulin entered the room, saw that the baby looked ill and attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. "He was a big healthy baby," Mrs. Thulin said.

The paramedics attempted to revive him. "The rescue squad was excellent," she said.

The baby was pronounced dead at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Thulin said the family should learn the cause of death soon.

Mrs. Nguyen gave birth to Frederick about four days after she was placed with the Thulins Sept. 12, Mrs. Thulin said.

MRS. NGUYEN and her two other children live with the Thulins. "We're very fond of them. They're like a part of the family," Mrs. Thulin said.

The Vietnamese mother and her three children were placed with the Thulins by Catholic Charities, which has sponsored many refugee families.

Mrs. Nguyen was living near Da Nang when her husband was killed. The family left South Vietnam because they were Catholic and feared repercussions when the North Vietnamese took over their country, Mrs. Thulin said.

Arlington law for game centers?

July many church leaders and residents have opposed it. But the city council voted unanimously in October to approve an ordinance to allow the zoning and licensing for the center.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer used his veto power for the first time in eight years to reverse that decision and the council failed to get the seven votes needed to override the veto.

Last month a new ordinance was proposed. It allowed mechanical amusement devices providing no eating or drinking occurred in the games facility. The council approved it with a 9-1 vote, but again Meyer vetoed it.

TV, radio gear taken in two burglaries

Mount Prospect police are investigating two burglaries that occurred during the weekend including one in which a $350 color television set was stolen from the Roger Martin home, 1601 Cottonwood Ln.

Burglars entered the home sometime between 7:50 p.m. Saturday and 1:50 a.m. Sunday by breaking a window, police said.

In the other burglary, about $370 worth of radio equipment was reported stolen Friday from a motorhome belonging to Edward Bakos, 1903 E. Camp McDonald Rd.

Police said burglars pried open a window to the vehicle and stole two citizen-band radios, a weather receiver and a meter.

Before trustees tonight

One-year reprieve for Renaissance?

A recommendation to allow a one-year extension for various phases of development for the 63-acre Renaissance project at Hicks Road and Northwest Highway will be considered tonight by the Palatine Village Board.

Developer Howard Sellergren sought the extension because he said without it the project is in jeopardy of failure. Sellergren said lenders who will finance the project want assurance that the development will not be under deadline pressure from the village, necessitating the extension request.

The extension calls for completion deadlines to be moved back by one year to 1978, 1979 and 1980. Plans for the development call for construction of a 10-acre recreation-commercial area, 8-acre office-commercial area, 18-acre shopping center and nine condominium apartment buildings.

THE PLANNING, building and zoning committee last week voted 2-1 to recommend the board grant the extension. Trustee Robert Guss voted against the recommendation because he said the developer was seeking the extension before work on much of the project has started.

The board also will consider a recommendation from the health, safety and welfare committee that the fine for failing to inoculate pet dogs and cats for rabies be increased from $10 to $25.

The fine would be imposed on residents whose dogs or cats are picked up by the village animal warden and have not been vaccinated against rabies.

Village officials said the stiffer fine is meant to encourage rabies vaccination of pets and is not an attempt to increase the number of purchases of village animal registration tags.

VILLAGE ORDINANCE requires all dogs and cats to have a yearly rabies shot. A village tag is issued only if the animal has been inoculated.

The board will be meeting for the first time in its new meeting room at the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St. The meeting will be in the library's Rannack Room in the lower level at 9 p.m.

A meeting of the administration, finance and legislation committee will precede the board meeting at 8 p.m.

Paramedics to participate in study

Two paramedics from the Northwest suburbs will participate in a national study of mobile intensive-care systems.

The study, sponsored by the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians, was proposed by Fire Chief Allen W. Hulett of Elk Grove Village, a national registry board member. The purpose of the study is to help the registry set up national training guidelines for paramedics.

The Northwest area firemen, who will visit five other fire departments during the study, are Lt. Bernard E. Goss of Elk Grove Village, chosen by Hulett, and Firefighter Dale Collier of Palatine, chosen by Dr. Stanley M. Zydlow, head of the mobile intensive-care program in this area.

THE TWO MEN will leave Tuesday for Los Angeles, where they will spend three days studying the Los Angeles County paramedic system.

Over the next five months, they also will make trips to Kansas City, Kan.; Columbus, Ohio; Seattle, Wash.; and Baltimore, Md.

A third paramedic, Firefighter Lynn Parks of Los Angeles County, will study five other departments, the first being Elk Grove Village, sometime in January.

"We will look at what the regional differences are in the operation of the paramedic programs," Goss said. "Our observations then will be used as a tool to improve the registry guidelines and possibly to suggest new training programs."

Goss said the fire departments chosen for the study were selected as they are nationally known as "progressive, energetic areas" for paramedic programs.

THE PARAMEDICS will be "very active observers," Goss said. They (Continued on Page 5)

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Santas are a dime a dozen around the Northwest suburbs this time of year, but Jeanette Gscheidle is one of a kind.

The Palatine mother of four makes her national debut as the merry "gentleman" from the North this month on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show."

Mrs. Gscheidle called The Herald offices late Sunday to say she will appear on Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow Show" at midnight tonight.

But Santa is no newcomer to suburbanites who now are accustomed to seeing a woman in the Santa suit cruising down the highway. They simply wave and remark that it must be that time of year again.

Every year Mrs. Gscheidle dons a red suit and white beard to make the rounds at local public schools, schools for the handicapped and homes for the elderly. She never comes empty handed, thanks to donations from individuals and local stores.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE chuckles that she is particularly suited for the role since she weighs about 300 pounds.

"I'm built for it," she said with a laugh.

Her Totie Fields sense of humor probably contributes most to this Santa's genuine jolliness.

A friend thought Santa would be the perfect guest on Carson's late night talk show so she sent photos and newspaper clippings describing Santa's exploits in the Northwest suburbs. Much to Mrs. Gscheidle's surprise, she received a phone call from the network last month asking if she would be available for an appearance.

She'll make the all-expense paid trip to California soon and hopes the show will be aired sometime during Christmas week although the exact date has not been set. She plans to use the money she will be paid to cover the cost of a new $300 Santa suit, a copy of the one worn by Bing Crosby in the movie "White Christmas."

Mrs. Gscheidle is a bit nervous about being broadcast nationwide before millions of viewers. "I want to get there, get it over with and get back," she said.

SHE ADMITS, with an impish grin, that she has done "a few nutty things" while in disguise. Last year she walked into the Palatine Post Office and asked for her mail. After some bewildered stammering, the postal clerk finally handed over a sack full of letters addressed to Santa Claus.

"Who's going to say no to a giant in a Santa Claus suit?" Mrs. Gscheidle said.

The post office now has agreed to keep her mail, and Mrs. Gscheidle tries to answer the children's letters.

Then there was the time when Santa and her son stopped at the local Jack-In-The-Box for a hamburger. She drove up to the outside speaker and ordered, "ho hoing into the microphone." The waitress appreciated the joke but was startled when Santa drove up in costume to claim the meal. Mrs. Gscheidle still remembers the looks on the faces of the cooks, waitresses and customers who ran to the window for a peek.

Starting Wednesday, Mrs. Gscheidle begins her annual whirlwind tour visiting 300 to 400 children each day. Each child receives a bag of goodies including candy and small toys.

When she visits homes for the elderly, she gives bags containing stationery, pens, calendars, combs and toiletries.

MRS. GSCHIEDLE has had many generous donations of gifts from individuals and local businesses. Bob's Union 76, her local service station, gave her $50 in gasoline "for the sled." When Santa was at the beauty shop this week a customer overheard her talking about her program and left a check and a note of good wishes for her at the front counter.

"If everybody helps it all adds up," said Mrs. Gscheidle. That's what Christmas is all about — the joy of giving unselfishly, she said.

Persons who wish to reach Santa can call her on her special Santa line, 991-4278, or simply write Santa, 620 W. Colfax Ave., Palatine, 60067.

Builder to get bill for street work

The developer of the Cambridge subdivision will be billed for street resurfacing work done on Kensington Court by the Village of Palatine.

Robert Miller, village engineer, said Richard J. Brown Inc., developer of the subdivision, will be sent the bill for asphaltting the street. Miller said the estimated cost of the work is $5,000.

The village told the developer last year to resurface the street by removing the base and installing new asphalt. The work was delayed because of problems the developer had with the contractor who was to have done the job, Miller said.

RATHER THAN delay the work any longer, the village decided to do the work itself and bill the developer.

Miller said the developer was notified of the action by phone and by certified letter. He said the bond company which held the performance bond for the work also agreed that the village's action was proper.

Miller said the village also will begin patching streets now that the colder, snowy weather has begun. Residents who find potholes which must be filled should call the village hall at 358-7500 to report the location to the public works department.

Miller also said the water department will begin a program of valve installations throughout the water main system this winter. He said valves will be placed at T-sections in the system to increase the shut-off capacity.

MILLER SAID the advantage of having more valves in the system is that it reduces the number of customers who must go without water if a main breaks and that section of pipe must be shut off.

The village also is preparing for winter snow removal with 20 tons of salt on hand. Miller said the village uses an average of 1,000 tons of salt each winter, but can only maintain 20 tons at a time because it has no storage capacity.

Miller said the public works department will make a request for $30,000 in next year's budget to build a salt storage facility. He said salt companies recommend that villages have storage capacity of at least three-fourths of the seasonal amount of salt they use in case of delivery problems.

Paramedics to participate in study

will go on emergency runs and observe procedures at hospitals, communication centers and in training.

Hulett, in his original proposal, said, "A comparison and evaluation of these (paramedic) experiences could prove a valuable tool . . . This exchange would facilitate the comparison of skills, techniques, equipment, instrumentation (and the like) by people actually functioning in the field."

The registry conducts a nationwide certification program for emergency medical technicians. Paramedic standards are set by states, and training is run by the area project director.

The registry estimates that a minimum of 50,640 paramedics will be needed to insure "national coverage" of the program.

Burglars entered the home sometime between 7:50 p.m. Saturday and 1:50 a.m. Sunday by breaking a window, police said.

In the other burglary, about $370 worth of radio equipment was reported stolen Friday from a motorhome belonging to Edward Bakos, 1903 E. Camp McDonald Rd.

Police said burglars pried open a window to the vehicle and stole two citizen-band radios, a weather receiver and a meter.

Dist. 57's Sunset Park

Panel recommends school shut down

A recommendation to close Sunset Park School next year has been made by the Mount Prospect Dist. 57 ad hoc committee.

The committee made its recommendation Saturday after reviewing reports from the board's finance and building-and-sites committees on the impact of declining enrollment in the district.

Enrollment is expected to drop 30 per cent from 2,893 students this year to 2,020 by 1980, causing a $2 million financial deficit in 1981 because of the resulting loss in state aid.

Through 1981 the district is projected to spend about $4.3 million more than it receives in revenue.

THE FINANCE committee recommended the board continue to study alternatives to improve the future financial condition of the district.

The building-and-sites committee recommended last week that school closings be postponed until 1977 and asked that a citizens' committee be formed to study the impact of declining enrollment and report back to the board next fall.

The ad hoc committee did not endorse that recommendation Saturday.

Board Pres. Peter Olesen, ad hoc committee chairman, said the committee will recommend closing Sunset Park School, 603 W. Lonnquist, next year.

That recommendation will be part of the ad hoc committee's report to the board when it meets Dec. 15.

BOARD MEMBER Martha Rotelli, chairman of the building-and-sites committee, objected to the ad hoc committee's recommendation. She said the board needs time to study the problem of declining enrollment in more detail and suggested a citizens' committee make a study, independent of the board. "We're not spending enough time on this problem," she said.

But other members of the ad hoc committee were against the postponing consideration of school closings, saying that the financial deficit which results from the loss of students is hurting the district right now.

"We have more than sufficient information to make a decision as a board," Olesen said. "If you know something has to be done and your studies show it, you do it," he said.

3-month-old child dies, 3rd sorrow for refugee

by STIRLING MORITA

Mrs. Chanh Nguyen, a Vietnamese refugee living in Mount Prospect, has experienced many sorrows in her life.

Her husband died earlier this year while serving in the South Vietnamese navy. She learned about two weeks ago her brother, from whom she had been separated, had died in Vietnam.

Then, Saturday night, her 3-month-old baby Frederick died, apparently the victim of crib death.

"She has had so many blows," said Mrs. Frederick Thulin, at whose house Mrs. Nguyen is staying. "She named him after my husband. We were the godparents of the baby."

POLICE SAID the baby was placed in his crib about 6 p.m. Mrs. Thulin and Mrs. Nguyen were washing the dinner dishes. The baby had been crying, and when he stopped they thought he had fallen asleep, police were told.

Mrs. Thulin entered the room, saw that the baby looked ill and attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. "He was a big healthy baby," Mrs. Thulin said.

The paramedics attempted to revive him. "The rescue squad was excellent," she said.

The baby was pronounced dead at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Thulin said the Good enough to be a Leo?

A new club is being organized in town and it could well become one of the most valuable in the community. It's a Leo Club and, as might be suspected by the name, it's a spinoff of the adult Lions Club.

Leo members are boys and girls between 14 and 20 years old. They need not be sons or daughters of Lions. Membership simply requires that the young people be sensitive to the needs of others.

There are 2,000 Leo Clubs worldwide. They are service groups serving the less fortunate. And like the sponsoring Lions, the Leos have a super good time while doing good deeds.

Fifteen young men and women already have banded together, with the blessing of the Mount Prospect Lions, to get the local club started. Officers are: president, Jill Friedrich; vice president, Theresa Kania; secretary, Shirley Goodman; treasurer, Donna Balzan; and historian, Debbie Kania. Board of Directors are Craig Loew, Bob Blum and Ed Meixner.

The sponsoring Lions Club is providing three adults to work with the kids. They are George Gattas, Henry Frierich and Henry Wallace.

The new Leo Club meets on the first and third Wednesday evenings of each month in the community room of Friedrich's Funeral Home, 320 W. Central Rd.

The club's first major project will be traditional chestnut roasting on Christmas Eve in downtown Mount Prospect. This has been handled by the Lions Club in the past.

Also, the local Leos are thinking of making color charts for Hadley School for the Blind and providing and delivering Christmas baskets. Other ideas the young people may develop include visiting the elderly, reading to the blind, taking handicapped on nature walks.

The new Leo Club will surely attract the active and involved young people of the community who are eager for new challenges. For more information, call Jill Friedrich, 255-7800.

FOR SOME REALLY good Christmas music, do buy the Prospect High School choir's "Album of Christmas Music." The 36-voice choir provides a wide variety of holiday numbers, from the "Hallelujah Chorus" to "Winter Wonderland."

The albums cost $5 and are available from choir members or by calling the school, 255-9700, ext. 250.

Director of the choir is Sterling Mische.

Officials seek to settle $68,000 water bill, talk

A disputed $68,000 water bill will be one item discussed today when Mount Prospect officials begin negotiations with Citizens Utilities Co. for the purchase of lines in the New Town area.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said the village's three-man negotiating team will discuss the disputed water bill when it travels to Connecticut today for the first round of negotiations.

The bill resulted from an old contractual agreement that dates back to the village purchase of the small utility company that serviced the Mount Shire area. At that time, the utility company had no water source of its own and had to purchase water from Citizens Utilities.

"WHEN WE bought the utility, we had to take on the contractual obligations," Teichert said, noting the utility and the village have had disputes on the matter ever since.

Teichert said a shortage of water in the area eventually prompted the village to connect the utility with the village water system. He said when the village installed a new well in the southern part of the village "we stopped using the water from Citizens."

Citizens Utilities, however, has maintained that the village has a contractual obligation to purchase a certain amount of water. The utility has been sending the village estimated bills, which now total $68,538, but the village has refused to pay.

EPPLEY, TEICHERT and Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann are scheduled to spend today and tomorrow in negotiations with company officials.

The village has been studying the possible purchase of the utility company lines in the New Town area for nearly two years.

A special consultant's report on the proposed purchase recommended a purchase price of $4.9 million. The board's finance and public works committees, however, called for the opening of negotiations, saying more information was needed to determine if the purchase is financially feasible.

Panel urges closing of Sunset school a citizens' committee to make a study, David Kluxdal, ad hoc committee member, said.

"Some of these things have to be done right now," he said. Kluxdal said he personally objects to the idea "that we should drop consideration of a reduction in sites next year."

The ad hoc committee prepared a list of subjects it is recommending for further study by the board.

The committee is recommending that the board study immediately:

- Changes in class size. The district now has an average class size of 25 students.
- Elimination or modification of educational programs.
- Reduction in administrative and custodial staff.
- A modification in various school fees.

Refugee's baby dies in crib death here family should learn the cause of death soon.

Mrs. Nguyen gave birth to Frederick about four days after she was placed with the Thulins Sept. 12, Mrs. Thulin said.

MRS. NGUYEN and her two other children live with the Thulins. "We're very fond of them. They're like a part of the family," Mrs. Thulin said.

The Vietnamese mother and her three children were placed with the Thulins by Catholic Charities, which has sponsored many refugee families.

Mrs. Nguyen was living near Da Nang when her husband was killed. The family left South Vietnam because they were Catholic and feared repercussions when the North Vietnamese took over their country, Mrs. Thulin said.

• Combining the district's schools and/or administrative facilities.

It is recommending that the board study in the future:

• Formation of a unit school district, combining high school with elementary school districts.

• Sharing of facilities with other school districts, perhaps consolidating with other districts.

The committee also suggested the board continue its search for ways of reducing costs and ways of seeking more funds from local, state and federal sources.

TV, radio gear taken in two burglaries

Mount Prospect police are investigating two burglaries that occurred during the weekend including one in which a $350 color television set was stolen from the Roger Martin home, 1601 Cottonwood Ln.

Burglars entered the home sometime between 7:50 p.m. Saturday and 1:50 a.m. Sunday by breaking a window, police said.

In the other burglary, about $370 worth of radio equipment was reported stolen Friday from a motorhome belonging to Edward Bakos, 1903 E. Camp McDonald Rd.

Police said burglars pried open a window to the vehicle and stole two citizen-band radios, a weather receiver and a meter.
